European Anarchists Threaten America If Prisoners Are Executed

(BY WEBB MILLER)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, November 8.—(By the United Press)—Warning of a world-wide uprising of anarchists if the lives of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomo Vanzetti, convicted of murder of a paymaster and his guard at Braintree, Mass., are not spared, was issued today from the secret headquarters of the Paris anarchists.

The threat was made to a United Press correspondent, who was conducted by mysterious paths across the city, closely questioned and finally ushered into a low, dark den at the end of a stairway guarded by armed men. It was made in the presence of half a dozen long-haired anarchist leaders, who were engaged in getting out La Libertaire, the newspaper of the organization.

It was Heri Delecourt, leader of the Paris anarchists, who spoke.

"We warn Americans that serious things will happen if our comrades Sacco and Vanzetti are executed," Delecourt said solemnly while all the anarchists in the darkened room fixed the correspondent with serious stares.

Sacco and Vanzetti have appealed several times from their conviction and Judge Webster Thayer, of the superior court of Massachusetts, has under consideration a bill of exception filed by their attorneys.

The several trials of the two men occasioned anarchistic demonstrations in various parts of the world and led to an attempt to kill Ambassador Herrick with a bomb. The American embassy here now is closely guarded.

Following indications that anarchists again were becoming active on behalf of the condemned men, the United Press sought information from Anarchist headquarters. All manner of mystery was thrown around the visit to the den where the organization holds forth. The trip across town was reminiscent of a secret society initiation in an American college. The correspondent was not blindfolded but was thoroughly mystified as to his direction.

He was examined as to his belief and intentions and finally taken down a long dark passageway at the end of which two armed men halted the party.

Once the password was given and the correspondent was inside the darkened room, the anarchists came to the point.

"We cannot answer for what will happen if our comrades are executed," Delecourt said impressively.

"Anarchists everywhere are highly agitated. They might employ drastic methods.

A number of our Italian and Spanish comrades are here and others in America have furnished money.

American anarchist organizations are working among the comrades in Italy, Spain and France."

The correspondent asked how this was being done. On the last occasion of agitation over the fate of the two men, there were demonstrations in France, Italy and South America.

"Naturally we don't wish to reveal our plans to you," Delecourt responded brusquely. "You probably would warn the police."

"But you can tell Americans to look out."

NIP PLOT FOR BLOODY REVOLT IN SPAIN

Hughes To Retire; May Name Harvey

(BY LUDWELL DENNY)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, November 8.—(By the United Press)—Secretary of State Hughes today was reported definitely to have decided to relinquish his post March 4 and retire to private life.

Coincidentally George Harvey, former Ambassador to Great Britain, was spoken of as a likely successor to Hughes at the helm of the state department.

Hughes' present intention to resign was said to be based upon a wish to resume his private law practice and recoup his personal fortune which has been depleted by long public service at relative low salaries.

Beginning in 1905 and up to the present Hughes devoted himself to public service unremittingly with the exception of the five years between the time he left the supreme court in 1916 to run for president until his appointment as state secretary in 1921.

His friends say he has accomplished every task he set for himself when he entered office and can leave it now, knowing that his record will stand as a mark for his successors to aim at. Hence his desire to retire now, they say, is both reasonable and understandable.

Hughes' ultimate goal, it is said, is reappointment to the supreme court. After a few years of active law practice he will be available for such an appointment if a vacancy occurs.

Pressure from various sources, however, is and will continue to be applied to Hughes to cause him to stick at his post, and it may prevail.

George Harvey is said in informed quarters to have the call on any post in the power of the president to bestow upon him. This statement is based upon his intimacy with Mr. Coolidge during his campaign, the value the president is said to have placed upon his counsel and in addition, has wide experience in public affairs.

The state department is the only place Harvey is believed to have any reason to desire.

"Qualified Blue Laws" For Ashtabula

ASHTABULA, O., November 8.—(By the United Press)—"Qualified Blue Laws" will be in effect here tomorrow.

After four Sundays under the drastic restrictions of the old Ohio "Blue Law" code, Ashtabula has relented—partly.

The local Ministerial League demanded the full force of the law and got it. For four consecutive Sundays Ashtabula was the "bluest" town in the country. Proponents of the measure spent the day twiddling their thumbs. Others offered "passive resistance" by going outside the city limits to buy gasoline and cigars.

But now the opposing factions have agreed on modifications. Tomorrow cigar stores, gasoline stations, garages and soda grills will be open and grocery stores may sell goods between noon and 6 p. m.

The "catch" in the new plan is that two ministers and one business man will censor all the movies and the ministers will preach fifteen minute sermons in the theatres, taking their texts from the films.

Next Move In American Politics Will Be To Make Democratic Party A Liberal Opposition to Republicans

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1924 by Times Publishing Company.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Hope springs eternal in the Democratic breast and nothing appears more significant than the recurrent talk of William G. McAdoo for 1928. Instead of accepting the defeat of Tuesday as a verdict for conservatism, the Democrats are regarding it as the result of their own bad tactics.

This has more than passing importance as a postmortem. It shows what the Democrats are likely to try to do next. For the more they examine the election returns the more they are convinced that La Follette was the cause of their defeat. Just as Roosevelt in 1912 proved the nemesis of the Republican party so La Follette without perhaps intending it assisted materially in placing a conservative in power.

Immediately after 1912 the Republicans, especially those who supported Roosevelt, saw the unwisdom of keeping the party divided and they reunited in 1916. Even Colonel Roosevelt was so anxious to defeat the Democratic administration in 1916 that despite the appeals of a staunch battalion of Bull Moosers he refused to be a third party candidate again. Will Robert M. La Follette and his followers still stick to their plan of forming this winter a third party organization? The railroad brotherhoods and the American Federation of Labor and the other groups which lent their support to La Follette now see that a continuance of their struggle against Conservative doctrine will be futile unless they absorb the whole Democratic party or permit themselves to be absorbed by it.

Momentum To Establish Parties

There always is a momentum to the established parties. In both Ohio and New York where there were no outstanding third party candidates for governor, the Democratic candidates—Governor Donahey and Governor Smith—won out by comfortable majorities notwithstanding the tremendous pluralities given Coolidge. In New York the vote given Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor, would have gone to Al Smith as in previous elections and the only lesson of the New York State is that Smith, if beaten, would have been able to attribute to some extent his defeat to the loss of the few votes that might otherwise have gone to him.

Labor stands at the close of this campaign defeated in its first serious attempt to back a Presidential candidate. Friction inside Labor's ranks throughout the campaign when so many of the leaders insisted on going to Davis indicates that some of the chieftains recognized that the La Follette campaign was merely dividing their own ranks.

The talk of McAdoo for 1928 may never mean his nomination. He will be 64 years old then and as a rule candidates for President do not win the nomination at that age though La Follette's advanced age was not often talked about in the campaign. The mention of McAdoo does mean that the Democrats are already discussing the necessity of choosing a leader who will win for them the support of the voters who cast their ballots for La Follette, together with those who may at the end of four years want a change from Republican rule.

To the average man the mention of 1928 may seem premature and academic. But unfortunately it isn't. Members of Congress look far ahead politically and vote and act in respect to legislation with an idea of what will prove wise for 1926—the next Congressional election — and 1928, the next presidential contest. One third of the membership of the senate changes in two years, and the primary campaigns of some of these men will be on in a year and a half. If the Democrats decide to attempt a real coalition with the insurgent Republicans for the benefit of the next campaign they will lay their plans now.

Democratic Opportunity In West

While the Coolidge electoral votes came from the west as well as the east and even included some of the border states where conservatism is entrenched, the addition of the La Follette and Davis popular votes in the state west of the Mississippi River show that the margin for Coolidge would have been closer had these two parties combined than was the case in the east. The Democratic opportunity doesn't seem to lie in the East. Nor would it appear that the labor vote in industrial centers of the East is of sufficient influence to win over the rural districts. La Follettism made little impression on the farms of the Eastern states.

Turning to the west it is apparent that not only did the Democrats in large numbers go over to the La Follette standard but that many Republicans went to the Third party ticket. The big

Movement In A. F. of L. To Set Up Labor Party Seems Squelched

(BY DALE VAN EVERY)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, November 8.—The movement within the American Federation of Labor to set up a labor party in this country received such a severe set-back by the results of the election that the more conservative Federation leaders here today were confident the question would not come before the Federation convention at El Paso, Texas, November 17. The wing of the Federation and the allied Railroad Brotherhoods which have opposed the whole idea of developing labor's present non-partisan political effort into a direct party affair, feel that their position was justified by the election.

Labor endorsed nearly 300 congressional candidates. Of these some 180 were elected while only about 90 were defeated. This was regarded here as a distinct demonstration of the success labor may have when it clings to its old policy of "rewarding its friends and defeating its enemies."

Woman and Ball Bat Rout Prohib Raiders

CINCINNATI, O., November 8.—(By the United Press)—Rev. R. L. Graham and Charles Hutchison, liquor court raiders, got into a terrible jam last night looking for home brew.

They raided a home and had their pockets well filled with evidence when a woman appeared on the scene wielding a baseball bat.

She swung on them with all the force of a Babe Ruth, breaking the bottles in their pockets with the first volley of swings and with the second knocking down Rev. Graham and disarming Hutchison, who was in the act of drawing his revolver.

The raiders fled. When police came back cautiously later in the evening to serve a warrant, the home brew and the bat wielder had vanished.

Boom On Stock Market Continues

NEW YORK, November 8.—(By the United Press)—More than a million shares of stock changed hands in the short day trading on the New York Stock Exchange this morning—the third boom day since the elections.

The market closed strong with buyers at attention to take advantage of any recessions among the leading stocks. Traders anticipated with the public now actively in the market that there would be 3,000,000 and possibly 4,000,000 shares days next week.

Stock sales for the two-hour session today totalled 1,466,400.

The total value of bonds sold today was $13,698,000.

Feverish trading continued through the session. An extra ordinary volume of steel common which reached a further new high at 113, gave colors to rumors that an enormous pool had been formed in the stock. This is said to be the largest operation undertaken in U. S. Steel since 1900.

J. P. Morgan and Co., and Kuhn-Loeb and Company, were buying railroad stocks all over the room. Brokers executing their orders appeared to have unlimited buying power. Kuhn-Loeb interests were especially active in Pennsylvania which is one of the standard rails which has lagged behind in recent railroad markets.

Southern Pacific assumption of leadership in the carrier class was based on advices sent out by prominent commission houses that an increase in the $6 dividend to a $7 basis was contemplated at the meeting scheduled for November 13. Southern Pacific at 100 3-8 was at the highest level since 921.

The heaviest hour of any five-hour session on record was during the panic on May 9, 1901, between 1 and 12 o'clock, when 1,034,140 shares were dealt in. Low record trading was on December 30, 1914, when only 2,868 shares were handled on the Exchange.

Led by railroad shares the list on the New York Stock Exchange continued its record upward swing today on the crest of a tremendous "Bull" movement started by the results of the national election.

With hundreds of millions of dollars added to the market value of securities by one of the greatest trading days in the "Street's" history yesterday, the advance was under way again at the opening this morning. Officials declared the public was entering the trading as not before in years. Among the rails Pere Marquette was up 2 1-4 points at the opening of the market.

There was almost a record turnover of more than two and a quarter million shares on the New York Stock Exchange Friday, with trading in 506 separate issues.

The volume of business was greater than at any time since November 12, 1919, when the big liquidation of all stocks occurred after the war ended. On December 20, 1923, a record of 517 separate issues traded in was set. Orders from outside New York City, pouring in, swelled the tide that started with the Republican landslide of Tuesday and resulted in record business for New York trading.

Every house connected with the Stock Exchange was forced to work at top speed from the first hour on to handle the tremendous volume of business. Close application to the tickers was important because sensational advances were being recorded each minute.

Total bond sales yesterday were 24,320,000, the highest in recent years.

RUSSIAN EMBASSY SCENE OF STRANGE CEREMONIES

LONDON, November 8.—(By the United Press)—The Russian embassy in London was the scene of the strangest function in the British diplomatic history Friday night.

As the last of an army of painters and decorators left, Christian Rakovsky, Russian ambassador, threw open the doors of the old Imperial Embassy and welcomed friends of Russia to a reception in honor of the seventh anniversary of the communist revolution.

The affair was exclusive, newspaper correspondents were excluded and all information was refused.

The embassy, one of the most magnificent in London, was turned over to the Russians a fortnight ago, since when there has been feverish redecorating. Guests who entered last night declared they were astonished at the Gorgeous cream and gold rooms and furnishings surpassing those of any other embassy.

At the entrance 12 men in working clothes, with red neckerchiefs welcomed the guests between puffs of cigarettes. The guests ranged from typists and clerks from the soviet offices to men distinguished in the political and literary world.

A few of the guests were in evening dress, but most of the women wore jumpers and blouses and the men business suits.

Among the distinguished personages were H. G. Wells, George Bernard Shaw, George Lansbury, Arthur Henderson, Tom Shaw and Sidney Webb.

Several junior officials of the foreign office attended.

Prominent among the decorations was a bust of Nikolai Lenin surmounted by a bank of chrysanthemums.

Assassins Are Taken Crossing The Border

PERPIGNAN, FRANCE, November 8.—(By the United Press)—Police of this ancient gateway town on the border between France and Spain today picked up the trail of an organized plot to start a revolution against the Spanish government. The plot is being directed from a Junta headquarters in France, whence picked agitators are sent to spread disaffection in the Spanish army.

Simultaneously, the police at Barcelona reported the pursuit and arrest of several groups heavily armed with bombs. One policeman was killed and another wounded in running street fights. There also was evidence of an organized plot against the government unearthed as well as indications that a large number of revolutionists are participating.

Customs officials at Perpignan accidentally discovered the plot when a band of 22 well dressed Spaniards were passing through the customs. A heavy parcel was opened and found to contain 15 automatics and ammunition.

At first it was thought to be merely a plot to smuggle arms into Spain. Later, however, when five of the men had been arrested and two detained, the latter confessed to plotting against the Spanish government.

Alexander Prades, one of those implicated, confessed he intended to assassinate Primo Rivera, military dictator of Spain. The others each had been assigned to the murder of a certain member of the directorate, Prades said.

Denies It Is His Plot

PARIS, November 8.—(By the United Press)—Blasco Ibanez, Spanish author who is working actively in Paris to overthrow the Spanish government today disclaimed connection with the revolution exposed at Perpignan.

"It isn't mine," Ibanez told the United Press. "The incident at Perpignan is not connected with my movement. I am trying to start a revolution in Spain and will try to stir up the army and the people to revolt. My organization now is working towards that end.

I know nothing of the men arrested at Perpignan. I make no secret of my desire for a revolution in Spain, but naturally cannot reveal my plans at present. King Alfonso has a large number of detectives here in Paris watching me. Towards the end of the month I will announce to the world my charges against Alfonso and my plans."

HOWARD PLEADS GUILTY TO MANSLAUGHTER; SENT TO PEN

Will Howard, 32 years old, was sentenced to the penitentiary from one to twenty years by Judge Thomas in Common Pleas court Saturday, when, on the recommendation of Prosecutor S. Anselm Skelton, he was permitted to plead guilty to manslaughter for the killing of Clark Copas last June.

Howard shot and killed Copas while the latter lay asleep in bed at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Minor Copas, on Ninth street, Ealytown, on the morning of June 16 and an investigation by the officers indicated that jealousy was the motive for the fatal shooting.

Howard was indicted for first degree murder and Prosecutor Skelton, in explanation of his recommendation to allow the accused to plead guilty to the lesser offense, told the court that it developed that Howard was suffering from a serious mental trouble before the killing and that his condition had since become more acute, due to a physical disease which has impaired his mind. He further stated that there is considerable doubt now in the minds of the officials as to Howard's legal responsibility.

Judge Thomas, in commenting on the case, commended Prosecutor Skelton on the stand he had taken and that in the interest of justice the defendant's plea to the manslaughter charge would be accepted.

The accused, who has been in jail since the tragedy, was represented by Attorney B. F. Kimble. He will be transferred to the big prison at Columbus early next week.

OHIO STADIUM, COLUMBUS, November 8.—Ohio State and Indiana each had the ball within its opponents' 20-yard line in the first half of their game here today but each lacked the punch to take it over. Both elevens were weak in punting, their average being under forty yards. Both squads could gain practically at will in midfield, but their defenses stiffened when their goal lines were neared. Klee missed a drop kick from his 46 yard line in the first half, the ball going wide of the goal posts. Captain Sloate, of Indiana, attempted a place kick late inthe half, but his effort was blocked by the Buckeye forwards.

TRAYLOR AND ADKINS PLEAD NOT GUILTY

"Not guilty" was the plea of Lenzy Traylor and Jason Adkins when brought before Judge James S Thomas in Common Pleas court Saturday morning to answer to a joint indictment returned by a grand jury Thursday charging them with first degree murder in connection with the killing of Edward D. Funk, New Boston oil station owner, who was shot to death by Traylor, who was attempting to perpetrate a robbery on the night of October 21 in his place of business at Gallia and West avenues.

When Traylor and Adkins were brought into court shortly after 9 o'clock by Sheriff Harry M. Dunham and Deputies Elza Canter and Robert Reno, the court room was fill by a crowd of spectators anxious to get a glimpse of the prisoners. Traylor, who confessed that he fired the fatal shots which took Funk's life, wore a pale and haggard look and he appeared a little nervous as he was brought before the bar but Adkins did not seem at all nervous or excited and looked about the room at various times evidently seeking some friendly face.

After Clerk John W. Hall had finished reading each of the two counts of the indictments, Judge Thomas asked the prisoners their plea and on both occasions they answered, "Not Guilty" in a firm voice.

Prosecuting Attorney S. Anselm Skelton then advised the court that the accused men must be tried separately and asked that the Traylor case be assigned for trial on December 11 and that Adkins be brought to trial on December 16. Acting on the suggestion of the prosecutor Judge Thomas promptly directed the clerk to draw from the jury wheel a venire of seventy-five prospective jurors in each case, and that a copy of the venire be served on the defendants. It was pointed out that the date set for the Traylor trial will barely give the sheriff time to serve the prospective jurors the length of time required by law.

Attorneys T. C. Beatty and B. F. Kimble have been retained to defend Traylor and Judge A. Z. Blair will defend Adkins.

200 Men Arrest Progress of Forest Fires

Forest fires that swept over approximately 350 acres of timber land in the vicinity of Spencer Run, seven miles west of Portsmouth from Thursday afternoon until early Friday were halted through the efforts of eight crews of 25 men, directed by Assistant State Forester B. E. Leete of this city.

The men fought the fire day and night in an effort to prevent it reaching farm homes in that section and early yesterday they were successful in seeing their efforts rewarded when the fire was finally extinguished.

Late Thursday night high winds aided the flames and the force of workmen in the hills was doubled in an effort to check the spread of fire that swept rapidly over a wide era due to the blankets of dry leaves that cover the hills at this time. By starting back fires and constructing dead lines on the windward side of the blaze the workers were able to check the flames before they reached farm homes or barns in the hollows.

The men had the fire under control about two o'clock Friday morning.

Fire wardens C. N. Odle, J. F. Wright, John Hodge, Martin Elliott, M. W. Swearingen, and O. R. Foster were in charge of crews fighting the flames.

The land was covered with a second growth timber and Mr. Leete in estimating the probable loss stated that it would be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

The fire was first sighted by a patrolman from his station in the recently constructed fire tower, which is located on the state forest.

Forest fires which have been raging in the vicinity of Rarden and Wamsleyville have been placed completely under control, Mr. Leete stated last night.

Most of the fires were sighted from the Fire Tower and men were immediately dispatched to the scene to get them under control.

No estimate of the damage done by fires in this section in the past two weeks can be made at this time Mr. Leete stated. It is certain that overcoming a careless use of matches by hunters will alleviate much of the loss Mr. Leete says.

Description of Man Found Dead Near Waverly To Be Broadcast In Effort to Learn Identity

WAVERLY, Nov. 8—Coroner Dan J. Wilson is still holding the body of a young man whose head was cut off by a C. & O. train a few miles east of Waverly last Saturday night. The body is at the Davis-Leist Undertaking Company at Beaver, 12 miles east of Waverly.

Coroner Wilson is making a determined effort to find out whether the young man was murdered or was killed accidentally. Although his head was found severed from his body the two parts were patched together by the undertaker to permit a photograph to be taken. The result is a remarkable photograph and one which may lead to the discovery of his identity. The pictures have been posted about Waverly and show a good looking fellow of about 19 and of splendid physique. Coroner Wilson announced today that he expects to complete arrangements for the broadcasting from some radio station of a description of the dead man. The sending station will probably be the one at Columbus.

Abie's Irish Rose Opens Three Day Engagement Here Monday; Great Comedy

An attraction that is, and has been, commanding the attention of theatregoers throughout the country for the past two years, and unless all signs fail will continue to do so, is Anne Nichols' history-making comedy success, "Abie's Irish Rose," which the Brief Brith has secured for an engagement of three nights with matinee on Wednesday. They believe the attraction will prove the most important event in the citys theatrical history.

A play that can go into cities like Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles and remain from twelve to forty-two weeks in each place, to say nothing of a run of two years in one theatre on 42nd street, where it is still doing capacity business, must necessarily have more than ordinary drawing qualities—it is a phenomenon—yet this is absolutely a matter of record. Anne Nichols' world famous laugh producer, "Abie's Irish Rose" is the play in question, and was written and produced by Miss Nichols.

Seats for the three night performances and the Wednesday matinee are now on sale at Levi's on Gallia street.

Chillicothe Lands Pythian Convention

Chillicothe landed the 1925 meeting of the 22nd District Pythian Sisters when the 1924 district convention was held Friday afternoon and evening in Waverly, with the Pythian Sisers of that city entertaining a large number of visitors. The afternoon session was given over to a program of entertainment planned by the Waverly Temple.

At night a class of candidates, five Knights and one woman, from Waverly received degree work. The ritualistic work was conferred by a staff of officers selected from various camps in the district. Mrs. Margaret Huertel, Senior, Mrs. Anna Flowers Outer Guard, and Mrs. Rose Flowers, Protector, were officers of Ellrose Temple, this city, taking part in this part of the work. The Ellrose Temple degree team, directed by Mrs. Jennie Kah, conferred the floor work in a manner that won the local team high compliments.

Chillicothe invited the convention to that city and the invitation was accepted.

Ellrose Temple was represented by a delegation of women and men numbering close to fifty. The majority of the men arrived for the night session.

Woodmen Going to Ironton

One of the best meetings of the year was held last night by Portsmouth Camp, Modern Woodmen of America. Close to 100 were in attendance, including a good sied delegation from Ironton.

The visitors extended an invitation to the local Camp members to attend a big class adoption and social meeting to be held in Ironton next Thursday. Portsmouth Camp is expected to send at least 50 to the meeting. Local members are to meet at six p. m. next Thursday at their hall the trip to be made via automobile.

Two candidates, Arthur Crisp and Lee Morgan, were given degree work last night. Eight applications for membership were received. W. L. "Booty" Ross, who has been in the West for sometime for his health, delivered a splendid talk on the Modern Woodman sanitarium at Woodman, near Colorado Springs, Colorado.

A smoker and refreshments closed last night's session.

independent group of voters as a rule decides elections in the West. There is nothing to show that La Follette got a bigger slice of that group than President Coolidge. All the Democrats can note from the results is that had they combined with La Follette or had there been nominated a Democrat who could have appealed to the La Follette faction the race would have been closer in the west and the south would have gone along as usual.

Under the circumstances the Republicans having gathered virtually all the conservatives, the next move in American politics will be an effort to make the Democratic party a liberal, if not ultra-radical opposition to the Republicans. And if they win converts in Congress these will come from western Republicans who think such a course conforms to the will of the west.

Mrs. Fisher and Kidnaped Baby

When Mrs. Wilbur Fisher, of Boston, was granted a divorce and custody of her two-year-old son early last summer, she little knew the heartaches that awaited her. In August her baby was snatched from her sister and hurried away in a limousine. Months passed in following futile clues. The search finally came to an end in Montreal, where at a baby farm, Wilbur, Jr., was once more clasped in his mother's arms.

Where shall we go this evening?

Frequently you decide to spend the evening in town with some friend. The first part is easy. Dinner at a pleasant restaurant. But afterwards . . . What will you do to carry on this business of having a good time?

Easy! Two cents. An evening paper. A glance at the advertisements. Suggestion — agreement, and you're off!

You didn't go around to the different theatres, to be driven to an unsatisfactory choice by fatigue and time. If it's worth while to consult the advertisements about amusements, how much more worth while must it be when it comes to the spending of the household money.

Read the advertisements. They place before you the full choice of the trustworthy goods in the market. They describe advantages, and give you full information before you have to stir out of your chair. Pursue for every article you buy the method you use when it comes to amusements.

The way to be sure of what you buy is to buy advertised goods.

Reading advertisements is an education in better buying

In addition to the message there will be special selections by the large chorus choir and the congregation will use the Tabernacle Hymnal which so many learned to love during the Pace Meetings on account of the satisfying gospel messages in song. In all a satisfying service to please the cravings of man's spiritual nature has been planned and as usual a large number will be present Sunday evening at seven o'clock. The public generally is invited.

May Build New Church in McDermott

The Nazarene church at McDermott has been meeting with such wonderful success in their tent meetings at that place that steps have already been taken to build a permanent church in that village. The tent meetings have been going on for four weeks and more than 100 have been converted.

Since steps have been taken to build a church Henry Hamer, on whose lot the tent is erected has announced that he will donate that site for a church and will give in addition, $500, towards the building fund. R. C. Clemons has added $50 and many other smaller contributions have been made swelling the building fund to nearly $900. Work will be started at once on the preparing of plans for a new church.

Trinity Sunday school voted to accept this responsibility.

Dr. Fawell, who is now in America on furlough, is coming on from his home in Nebraska to describe the work in detail to Trinity folks. He will speak to the Sunday school in the morning and in the evening preaching service. He will be dressed in the native Indian costume and will exhibit pictures in the evening.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am a young man whom most girls consider radical, but I do abhor rouge, lipsticks, eyebrow pencils and what-nots that girls use in this day and age. I admire a quiet, home-loving girl. One who does not go out more than once or twice a week, preferably with her mother, and one who considers herself too good to go to a public dance hall and be swung around by the sports of this town. Nothing seems to lower a girl in a man's estimation like running to every dance that comes along without an escort. Dolly please criticize me as much as you see necessary and I will be more than thankful.

JUST PLAIN JERRY.

You certainly have a critical nature, and I hope the girls you are trying to reach through this column will read your letter and govern themselves accordingly. However, I would advise you to look for the qualities you do like, and spend less time thinking about imperfections and failing. It is a fine thing to be an idealist, but you are apt to be disappointed as you go through life. It is also a very fine thing to look for the soul back of the painted face. I have seen some mighty fine girls and women with a touch of rouge on their cheeks, so don't let a little thing like that worry you. It might be interesting to hear what the girls have to say about you. Are you immaculately groomed at all times? Are you always clean shaven, (neck included)? Do you keep your fingernails manicured, your shoes shined, your teeth clean, and your clothes pressed? Unless you do, don't criticise the girls for the way they appear in public.

Dear Dolly—I have a daughter 19 years of age who is the worry of my life. She wants to run around with girls and boys and never wants to stay at home with her parents. I try so hard to keep her in the house and her father threatens to whip her if she does not mend her ways. Now Dolly, she says that if we don't let her alone she will run away and never come back. Just what do you think of a daughter like that? Don't you think she is ungrateful to say the least?

WORRIED MOTHER.

She may be ungrateful, but if you were not so strict with her I imagine you would get along better. A girl of nineteen should be allowed to go places within reason. If she is not, you can't blame her for wanting to run away. It is the natural outcome of so restrained a life. If you will let your daughter bring her friends home and get acquainted with them, and find out who she is going out with and where she goes, I think you will be able to do more with your daughter than if you tried to make her stay at home every evening. There is a right way and a wrong way to handle stubborn children, and I think you have adopted the wrong way.

Dear Dolly—I know a married man who often wants to take me out. I do not care to go with him, and for that reason try to avoid him. Am I doing right?

WORRIED GIRL.

You are doing right by refusing to go out with him, but I see no reason why you should avoid him. When he asks you to go somewhere tell him decidedly and finally that you will not, then tell him a few more things that will convince him that you are not the kind of a girl he thinks you are, or the kind he has been in the habit of stepping out with. If you will do this, I'll bet you'll not be annoyed with him any more.

Dear Dolly—Do you know how to make a preparation of sage tea that is good for the hair? I have quite a lot of sage on hands and I don't know the ingredients of sage tea for the hair or I would make some.

MRS. GRAY HAIR.

Take three ounces of pulverized sage and pour a pint of soft cold water over it; have it in a tin dish with a cover; let it steep over the fire for ten or fifteen minutes; strain it off and add a teaspoon of pulverized borax and the same quantity of salt. Keep in a tightly corked bottle and apply with a sponge or soft cloth by rubbing gently all over the head; then brush lightly. Use it night and morning. For everything but hereditary baldness it acts like a charm.

Dear Dolly—I am 20 years of age and have lots of boy friends. One of them is so jealous of me that he can't bear to see me go out and have a good time with anyone else but he says all the mean things he can to me. He makes me tired and I won't notice him and then he makes slurring remarks about my friends. I think he is the limit, don't you? Please tell me what to do with a man like that?

POPULAR YOUNG GIRL.

I'd drop him quicker than you could say Jack Robinson. Then I would advise you to go out with whom you think best, regardless of his jealousy. Men like you describe should be ostracised from polite society.

Hay Shaker—You will find the poem, "When I Was a Tadpole, You Were a Fish," printed on the Book Page in this issue of the Sun-Times. All inquiries for poems and quotations should be addressed to the editor of the Book Page as I haven't space in this department for poetry.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE WHITE CROW TALKS TO MRS. GOOSE

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Mister Crow," said Mrs. Goose. "I thought you had gone."

The white crow left the Twins and Mister Pim Pim sitting on the front porch of the House-That-Jack-Built, and flew away to his nest on the highest mountain in the world.

There he waited until he heard the whirr and the swish that meant that Mother Goose was coming on her broom.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Mister Crow," said Mrs. Goose. "I thought you had gone. I'll come back and sweep out your room and make your bed a little later."

"Why, I was waiting to see you just on purpose," said the white crow. "I want to sit on your broom and take a trip over the world. I fly too slowly and there is need of haste."

"How now!" cried Mother Goose. "What's the trouble?"

"Strange as it may seem, Mrs. Goose," said the crow, "I am looking for your husband. I want to find Daddy Gander on his magic dust-pan."

"Why he went back to Mother Goose Land with the Twins and the House-That-Jack-Built," said the old lady.

"Much you know," Mrs. Goose," said the crow. "They did find Jack's house, 'tis true, but ever so many things have happened since then. The Twins were alone in the house when it blew away again and got stuck on this mountain. Daddy Gander had left them for a few minutes and now he's not to be found."

"So poor Jack's house that he took so much trouble to build is still lost," cried Mrs. Goose in dismay. "Poor Jack and Jill and their mother, Mrs. John, must be boarding around among the neighbors yet. But where is the house I don't see it."

"The brownies carried it down. "There it is in the valley below," said the crow. "But there it will stay for a thousand years unless we can find Daddy Gander."

"Well, jump on my broom," said Mother Goose, when she had had a good look. "You needn't be afraid as I left my black cat at home. Have you any idea where Daddy Gander went?" she asked when they had started.

"He took the cook back to the king in Yum Yum Land," said the crow. "The cook found the bread-sponge that Mrs. John had set for her baking, and a fire in the stove and everything, and he couldn't resist putting the bread into pans and baking it. The next thing he thought of was the king. He wanted the king to have that good bread and Daddy Gander offered to take him. That's where Daddy is now, In Yum Yum Land."

"Thieving, I call it!" cried Mother Goose. "It wasn't the cook's bread to bake or Daddy Gander's to give away. What will Mrs. John say when she gets her house back and finds her bread gone?"

Suddenly the white crow said, "Listen, I hear something. We must by flying over Yum Yum Land now."

"How do you know?" asked Mother Goose.

"Because I hear them going 'yum, yum' as they eat," said the crow. It's dinner time."

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — THE HIDDEN CITY

BY ELTON

As the little adventurer found himself being lifted out of the cavern he discovered that Flop, his pet monkey, had jumped off his shoulder. "Where are you, Flop?" he shouted. A squeak answered him and in an instant the monkey had climbed up the toadstool stem and joined Jack.

"I don't know where we are going," said the little adventurer, "but I'm going to hang on and find out." Then the toadstool stopped and Jack found that he was on the floor of another cavern. It looked very much like the room he had just left and the hole they had come through was closed.

"Well, where are we now?" he said. And the little toadstool surprised him by replying, "I'm the little toadstool who will take you far and near, to places where you want to be. Your dog will soon be here." Then the toadstool said, "Just keep an eye on that entrance." (Continued.)

A Town of 850 Built This Legion Home

This is what a town of 850 population did for the American Legion. This Legion home was provided by the citizens of Middletown, Md.

(By The Legion Committee)

There was a day when an American village of 850 persons lived on detached service from the rest of the world. That day is within the memory of most American Legion members. It was the day before the coming of the automobile when the roads which bound villages together were badly rutted mud trails or indifferent stonebound pikes. A trip to a neighboring town was a matter for study and planning. Perhaps a local train would make hesitant stops at the village, and sometimes drummers would warily drop into the general store which was also the post-office.

Perhaps life in this eastern village was like this thirty years ago, but it was not so when the local Post of the American Legion was formed in this age of the airplane and the radio. When the American Legion Post was formed in Middletown, Maryland, like almost every other town of the same size in the United States, was no longer on detached service from the rest of the world. Through it flowed the strong currents of modern society, bringing to it the same impulses and the same advantages in everyday life that were transforming the lot of Americans every where. The village felt the need of a community building in the form of an American Legion home.

It was this need which led to the erection of an American Legion memorial home at a cost of more than $57,000.00. In making their contributions for this home the citizens of this village recognized that the local American Legion post typified the new order of the world, the progress in which youth is leading the way to better things. The citizens of the town provided the funds for the building, and the American Legion raised the money for the interior equipment.

Since it was dedicated and opened, the building has justified every hope of its planners. Perhaps there were those who felt that a Legion post of 40 members, in a village of 850 persons, was capitalizing the future too heavily in assuming the responsibility of a building representing an investment of nearly $60,000.00. But no misgivings have been expressed since the doors of the new home were opened.

Today, Everhart Post holds its meetings in the building and uses it as a club every day in the week. In the auditorium are given vocal and instrumental musical programs, motion picture shows, and dramatic entertainments. Here is assembled a library, with facilities for study, reading and research. The Post furnished the books and supervises the library's operation. In this Legion home policies are formulated which affect the public good. Its program after being housed in a permanent home is service to the community. This Post of the American Legion is only one of thousands of Legion Posts which have permanent homes, and most certainly the achievement of establishing a $57,000.00 Legion home in a village of 850, with a Legion post of 40 members, represents the finest spirit of the community and the Legion.

Will Submit Legion Pledge Cards

All team captains for The American Legion Drive are requested to report at The American Legion Hall at 7:30 tonight for the purpose of turning in their reports and pledge cards after canvassing the Legion membership. This is very important on account of the drive beginning Armistice Day, November 11th. The committee is anxious to receive your report and pledge cards in order that a summary of the Legion's membership subscription for the permanent home may be made. The loyalty of the members is manifesting itself splendidly through the members' contribution to the fund. Captains remember the time, 7:30 tonight.

The Committee.

ABE MARTIN On Don't Git Discouraged

IKE SOLES WASHIN' UP AT TH' HORSE FOUNTAIN

It is indeed doubtful if there is among all th' life stories o' those who have succeeded agin' staggerin' odds a career that even approaches that o' Ike Soles. Ike Soles started out in life with three serious handicaps. He wuz an only child, his father wuz great, an' he had a fine tenor voice. While his mother owned him an' saw t' it that he had shoes an' warm clothes, he wuz allowed free rein an' spent th' habit formin' years o' his life loafin' around th' O. K. livery barn. Fer awhile his services as a six-horse driver wuz in fair demand, but th' band wagon got out o' repair an' wuz finally chucked altogether. When young Soles finally felt th' urge t' better things he found himself unfit fer many o' th' cullin's o' life. He took up law at twenty-two an' started t' run fer office. He wuz a canndyate fer county treasurer, promisin' that if elected he'd let his assistant run th' office. He tried fer th' county treasurer's office three times in spite o' ever' discouragement. Then he aspired t' th' office o' county assessor, bringin' out his middle name, Purviance, which wuz his mother's maiden name. Even this piece o' strategy failed him, an' he wuz snowed under. Then he took up insurance solicitin' an' went after th' nomination fer constable, promisin' t' treat ever'buddy alike if he should win at th' polls. Another failure wuz added t' his belt, but he never once lost hope, or vowed that he wuz through with politics. He tried t' sell nursery stock fer a spell, but th' employment wuz unsuited t' his temperament. He took a post-graduate course in tree surgery, but never practiced. Then th' Roosevelt panic came along an' his father lost ever'thing. This blow only seemed t' nerve him an' he struck out with renewed vigor, an' took in a free excursion t' th' Yakima apple country in Washin'ton. Nothin' wuz heard o' him fer several years. Finally he came home one day with a carload o' western horses an' opened a studio fer th' voice. But he wuz several years ahead o' his time an' th' studio caused little stir. His mother an' father had, in th' meantime, split up an' flown, but fer from bein' discouraged an' downcast Ike Soles washed up at th' horse fountain an' set down on th' court house steps militant an' determined t' succeed in th' town of his birth. All at once th' p'tater chip business suggested itself t' him. He'd found himself. T'day Ike Soles is known wherever p'tater chips are crunched. T'day he's married, has two cars an' one child, an' never fails t' give an encouragin' word t' all who need money.

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Ia.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNERMARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

T. D. Smith Hangs Up New Insurance Record

Thomas D. Smith, district manager for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., who for the past month has been engaged in a drive to excell the world's record for one month's work in writing insurance policies, has not only passed his quota to establish a new record, 210, but has hung up a new mark for insurance men the world over to shoot at Mr. Smith, during 27 working days, sold 227 different policies on 227 different lives.

The new record, 18 policies ahead of the previous record, made by D. V. Edmundson, Birmingham, Ala., puts Mr. Smith to the fore as a leader in his field, and he is receiving congratulations on every hand.

Commenting upon his record, Mr. Smith said last night.

"I set my goal for 183 applications in order to beat the record of R. Vandiver of Montgomery, Ala., but after I had my plans all made I received word that Mr. Dan. V. Edmundson of Birmingham, Alabama had written 209 applications, in so doing, he held the world's record, so I changed my quota to 210 for 27 working days.

"The first 10 working days of October I wrote 110 applications on 110 different lives. Then I was sick for six working days and started out again on October 20. In the meantime they had sent me word that they would grant me the six working days in October that I was sick and they would give me six working days in November.

"I finished the 27 working days with 227 applications on 227 different lives. In so doing I have beat the record of Mr. D. V. Edmundson of Birmingham, Alabama."

"The people of Portsmouth have been very kind to me in this drive, I want to thank everyone who has helped me to put this over, and Dr. G. Micklethwaite and Dr. T. G. McCormick who have made the examinations for the Central Life Insurance Co. I want to also thank the Portsmouth Times and the Morning Sun for their efficient reports from time to time of my work."

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Is One of Nature's Danger Signals. A Healthy Bladder Does Not Act at Night.

Irritation, excessive acidity or abnormal deposits may be the cause. It needs cleansing. Uthlated Buchu (Keller Formula) acts on the kidneys and bladder as Epsom Salts on the bowels. R. D. Neblett, 10 Oak St., Battle Creek, Mich., says: "For three years had to get up three times at night. Uthlated Buchu (Keller Formula) helped me in two days. I now do heavy work. It isn't a patent medicine. The formula is on the label. Sold by leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.—Stahler Bros.—Advertisement.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

The following poultry raisers of the county met at the Farm Bureau offices Thursday afternoon for a conference with Raymond E. Gray, poultry specialist from the Ohio State University: F. S. Alley, Chas. Click, J. W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Preston, Arnold Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lang, P. P. Cockrell and C. D. Conkel. These farmers with Joe Boynton, Mrs. W. K. Burke, Gladys Seeley, Avanelle Sherborne, Mont O. Preston, Frank Knore, Chas. Brush, J. H. Bonzo, John Goodman, Alexander Norvel, Mrs. E. C. Moulton, Mrs. Celinda McNamer, Wilbur McJunkin, Mrs. F. G. Schnitzuis and David McJunkin, will keep poultry demonstration records under the supervision of the county extension agent and the poultry department of the Ohio State University during the coming year beginning November 1st.

The records of the past year were discussed at the meeting with the record keepers by Mr. Cray. The different practices in feeding and care, and equipment were compared for increased egg production with the records of the past year to prove the merits and defects of the various methods and practices of Scioto county poultrymen. In addition to the farmers who will keep demonstration records for the coming year the following people will use the poultry calendar issued by the University and kept under the supervision of the County Agent and the state poultry department: Mrs. George Selby, D. S. Lamb, Mrs. J. F. Woodell, Mrs. Perry Bonner, Mrs. R. B. McChesney, Carter Bros., Mrs. Chas. Helt, Mrs. Enos Moore, Mrs. S. V. Selby, Mrs. F. E. Oakes, Fred Mootz, Miss Dora Campbell, George Hock and Mrs. Russell Frowine. The poultry calendar is a new idea worked out by the extension specialists at the university to enable the poultry raisers under experienced supervision to keep an accurate record of the production of the flock with definite information at all times as to the profit or loss that is being made. It also offers the poultryman added assistance in all the problems that come in conducting a modern poultry farm.

John Gabler, E. C. Wamsley, Howard Compton, Mrs. Wm. Turner, Mrs. Chas. Helt, T. H. Bennett, Floyd Lavinder, Vallee Harold, F. S. Alley, Leo Reipenhoff, Dan Oakes, F. E. Oakes, S. V. Selby, David McJunkin, and Walter Gahm met with F. E. Allen, Supervisor of Farmers Institutes from the Ohio State University, at the Farm Bureau offices Thursday in an all-day meeting to lay plans for the various Farmers' Institutes that will be held in the county during the winter months. Mr. Allen outlined from years of experience in conducting successful institutes, plans for making the institutes in Scioto county more practical and useful to the rural and urban folks, especially in instituting movements for the improvement of the communities and the betterment of rural living conditions. Every community in the county where an institute is scheduled was well represented at the meeting. Capable state speakers will be furnished this year and all institute officers were urged to prepare programs that will prove helpful to the communities. Many of the institutes are planning to hold agricultural exhibits in connection with their programs and are preparing prizes to be offered for the best displays of farm products. Plans are being formulated to conduct poster contests among the pupils of the rural schools, the prize winning posters in each county to be entered in the state poster contest for which substantial cash prizes have been provided from state funds. Prizes will also be given to the winners in each county. Any grade pupil is eligible to enter the contest, and any information in regard to regulations and requirements will be furnished by addressing County Agent, R. M. Thomas, Portsmouth.

The Affair at Flower Acres

by CAROLYN WELLS

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot through the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the light switch. In a moment Nancy appears, white-faced and terrified. Orville Kent, Nancy's brother, comes in from the south side of the room. And then Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley; Miss Mattie, Raynor's sister, and others, enter upon the scene. Detective Dobbins if official investigator. An autopsy reveals that Raynor also was being systematically poisoned with arsenic. Lionel Raynor, son of Douglas Raynor by first marriage, comes to claim his father's estate. Now Dobbins, posing as a reporter, interviews Nurse Turner's mother in New York in hopes of learning more about her daughter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, publicity?"

"Yes. Where was Miss Turner born?"

"Land! I don't know."

Dobbins stared. "I thought you were her mother!"

The woman laughed outright.

"I'm only a hired mother. You know, actresses and nurses and, oh, lots of girls—nice ones—have to have a mother. Well, sometimes, not having a real one—they hire one. I'm a professional mother. I have four 'daughters' in this house."

"Miss Turner is in luck to have secured your services," he smiled, "but—er—do ladies as—as mature as Miss Turner need a—a chaperone—?"

"Not always," she smiled at him. "Eva is no chicken—but I've been her mother so long—she still keeps me on."

"How long have you been with her?"

"Lemmesee. Twenty years or more."

"Was she a trained nurse all that time?"

"Not all—she was on the stage first off—but she got hurt in an automobile accident—"

Dobbins' calm gave way, and his involuntary expression of excitement frightened the woman.

"Look here," she cried, "who are you anyway? What do you want of Eva?"

"I want to see her—I want to talk with her—why are you so alarmed?"

"You don't want her for—for anything special?"

"Then I will find out for myself. Good day." And Dobbins left her without further word.

CHAPTER XIII

Eva's Story

It was two days later that Dobbins returned in triumph to Flower Acres, bringing Miss Turner with him.

When accused, in the presence of Mrs. Raynor, of poisoning Douglas Raynor, Miss Turner at first denied it, and then, as further pressure was brought to bear, she cried out—"Yes, I did—I did try to put that man out of the world. But I didn't do it—his wife sghot and killed him!"

And this story she stuck to.

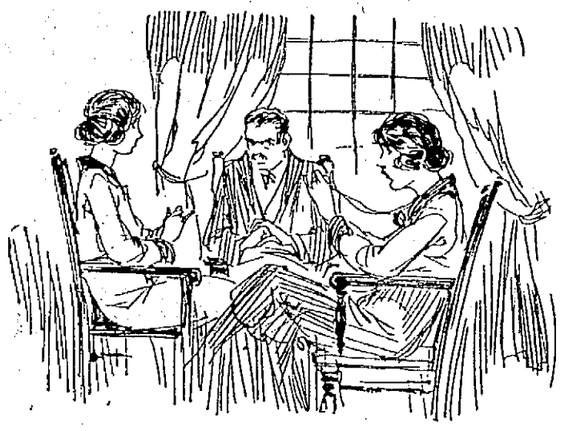

She told the tale of her acquaintance with Douglas Raynor, admitting it was twenty years ago.

"He spoiled my whole career," she said; "my whole life. I was a successful singer, a favored chorus girl. My dancing was greatly admired and I planned to become a professional dancer rather than a singer or an actress. I had a fine opportunity for advancement and was about to accept another and better position than the one I then had, when I went, at Douglas Raynor's invitation, on a midnight ride in his car. He drove the machine himself—a swift roadster, and, when we were on a long lonely stretch of road, late at night, that man—" She paused a moment, glancing at Mrs. Raynor, and then, at a nod from the detective, she went on, "that man tried to throw me out of the car."

"Incredible!" murmered Dobbins.

"Yes, he did," Eva Turner reiterated; "he gave me a push, and I should have fallen out, but that I grabbed the side o fthe car. I also grabbed at his arm, and that threw the steering gear askew—I suppose, for the car swerved, and upset, and we both landed in a ditch by the side of the road. He escaped without serious injury but my leg was broken in two places, and I could never dance again. I could walk all right—without a limp—but I couldn't take a dancing step. Of course, I couldn't walk until after three months in the hospital, and then three more of recuperation at home. And Mr. Raynor never came near me—never sent me a line of sympathy or encouragement—merely sent his secretary—of some man of business, to learn of my progress and to pay the bills."

"You felt revengeful for all this?" Dobbins asked, mildly.

"I DID TRY TO PUT THAT MAN OUT OF THE WORLD—BUT HIS WIFE SHOT AND KILLED HIM."

"Such as what? What have you in mind that frightens you so? I think, Mrs.—"

"Mrs. Morrison."

"I think, Mrs. Morrison, that you are unnecessarily disturbed. Unless Miss Turner has reason to fear my questions, I cannot think she will object to them. But, one thing, first. You have known Miss Turner for—did you say, twenty years?"

"About that," the woman's face was sullen now.

"Was her name always Eva Turner?"

Mrs. Morrison's face turned white.

"So it's come, has it?" she said, with a moaning wail that transformed her independent attitude to one of cringing fear. "Are you a detective?"

"Yes, I am. Now, you'll save time and trouble for yourself, Mrs. Morrison, if you answer my questions. What was Miss Turner's name as an actress? I know all actresses have assumed names."

"She didn't. When she was a chorus girl—not an actress—she used her own name—Effie Talcott. She was a nice girl and a good girl, until—"

"Until she fell into the clutches of a bad, unscrupulous man."

"Exactly that. He made love to her, he led her astray, he ruined her, and at last he took her on a joy ride—there was an accident ,and she broke her leg—a bad compound fracture. He took her to a hospital—and, he never saw her again!"

"He paid her expenses?"

"Yes—but he had promised to marry her—"

"Are you sure?"

"She always said so. She sued him—but he was too great and powerful for her to have success of that sort. His lawyers settled with her for a very small sum—which she was obliged to take because she had no way to make him pay more."

"And—was she—is she of a revengeful disposition?"

"She is, indeed!—that is—why, no—I don't know—"

The woman had suddenly come to her senses and realized that she was telling too much for her "daughter's" good.

"I don't know anything about it! I will tell you nothing more!" she cried angrily.

"Give me her present address."

"I will not."

"Did I?" Eva Turner's eyes blazed. "I wanted to kill him—I wanted to put him to death by some slow, lingering torture that would make him feel a tithe of the grief and despair that I suffered!

"The only thing I felt I could take up was nursing. During my stay in the hospital, I became interested in that, and the nurses I met there were kind and helpful. So, when I was able I took my training and became a graduate nurse."

"And all the time your heart was full of revenge toward Mr. Raynor?" the detective inquired.

"Yes, but I saw no way to gratify it. In fact, as the years went by, and I grew older, I rather forgot my hatred of him—and became absorbed in my work. Then, one day, by chance, I came across—I heard through another nurse, that Mr. Raynor wanted a dietitian. That is one of my specialties, and as I thought about old times, all my hatred of the man came back to me—all my animosity revived, and I conceived a diabolical plan of coming here to be his dietition—and poisoning him while I prepared his food."

"Cold-blooded premeditation, then."

"Yes—I suppose so—but it didn't seem to me murder—it didn't even seem wrong. It seemed only justice toward the man who had wronged me, who had wrecked my life—who had tried to murder me! Right or wrong—that is what I came to Flower Acres determined to do."

Miss Turner sat bolt upright in her chair.

"And so you poisoned him," Nan said slowly, looking at Eva Turner. "Did he know it?"

"I'm not sure. I think he suspected it. That was why he gave me a large sum of money—in securities—if I would go away from here."

"He knew who you were, then?" Dobbins asked.

"Not at first. But I revealed myself to him—and then he was frightened. He begged me, pleaded with me to go away. But that was my revenge—to see him cringe and crawl. I'm not sure I really meant to kill him—I don't know. I wanted to have him ill—suffering—frightened—and then, if my revenge became satiated—perhaps I should have stopped the poison."

Says Practice of Dusting Is Health Menace

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 8—The time honored practice of dusting is a menace to health, Miss A. L. Marlatt, director of home economics of the University of Wisconsin, told delegates to the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent Teachers Associations today. Advising against spending too much time in dusting, she said:

"Dust sitting tight, injures no one. As housekeepers, we need to know more of bacteriology so that we may realize that misplaced dirt may be more harmful though we sometimes regret its presence; that the harmful thing, in the point of health, is dust floating in the air and bacteria spread from the persons whose manners have not been well trained.

To Attend Conference

Many of the young people of Portsmouth have had the privilege of attending a State Young People's Conference under the auspices of the State Council of Religious Education.

The next conference will be held in New Philadelphia, O., on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 21, 22, 23.

Scioto County is limited to two young men and two young ladies and one adult leader this year under the new ruling and so all the young people who would like to go may not have the privilege but the first ones to make reservations will be sure to get the appointment and others can be put on the waiting list and then after the fifteenth, others may be appointed providing some other county does not fill its entire quota.

Let me urge those who expect to attend, please notify F. B. McComb, the County Young People's Superintendent, in care of the High School or E. E. Barnhart, the District Director, Portsmouth, O., who will furnish the proper credentials. These credentials will give the delegates the advantage of reduced railroad rates. These reservations will only be guaranteed till the fifteenth. It is hoped this county will have its full quota and more at this conference which promises to be an outstanding one.

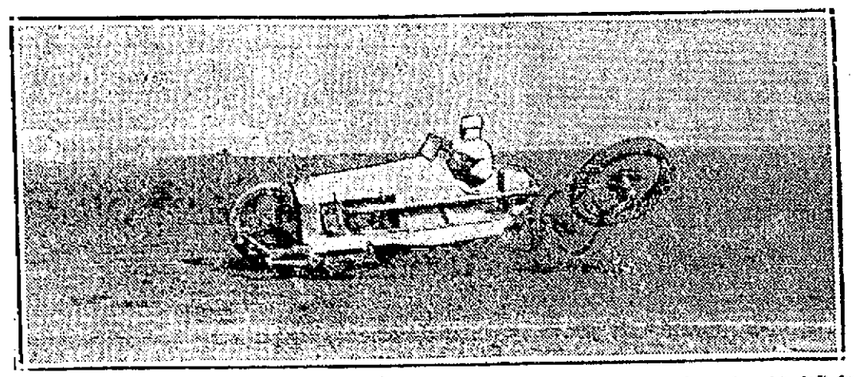

The speakers this year will be John L. Alexander, Chicago, Miss Alice May, Gloversville, N. Y., Hobert Hill, Charleston, W. Va., and Leon C. Tyler, Chicago. Fred D. Cartwright, State Young People's Superintendent, will be the Director of the Conference. It will be remembered that Mr. Cartwright was at the Scioto County Sunday School Convention recently held in the Trinity church and made a favorable impression.—E. E. Barnhardt, Director.

Woman and Dog Hold 20 Cops At Bay

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—A gray-haired woman, armed with a pistol and aided by three bull dogs Friday held at bay for more than an hour, a squad of 20 policemen and deputy bailiffs to serve an eviction notice on her. In the end, however, she was out-maneuvered by the officers, who made a noisy attack on the front door to draw her attention while a lone officer crept in the back door and pinioned her arms.

Shortly before a bailiff had tried to induce a 19 year old youth to creep in and disarm the woman. She saw him coming and when she threatened to shoot, the frightened youth dived through a window landing on his head. The woman said she is Mrs. Mary O'Connor, and explained that she had expected to move today and did not intend to be forced out a day ahead of time.

KLAN WILL APPEAL ADVERSE DECISION

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 8—Application will be made in city court tomorrow to stay the proceeding against George C. Bryant, district kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, until the higher courts have passed upon the appeal from today's decision of Justice Charles A. Pooley, upholding the constitutionality of the Walker law under which Bryant is being prosecuted.

Steps for an immediate appeal from the decision were made by Julius A. Grass, Klan counsel, as soon as he had been served the Pooley decision.

The Walker law prohibits the existence of secret, oath-bound associations except those named in the benevolent order law and compels all other secret associations to file with the secretary of state a copy of its constitution and by-laws, its roster of membership and the minutes of all meetings at which action is taken to promote or defeat legislation or to support or to defeat a candidate for political office.

Louis E. Fuller, who has been retained by the Klan to fight the law, alleged that it was discriminatory. Justice Pooley in his decision today held otherwise. Mr. Grass said that the appeal would be carried to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

DEATH LIST FROM PLAGUE REACHES 30

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 8—Hopes of health authorities to curb the epidemic of pneumonic plague in the Mexican colony here were sustained tonight when only two new deaths had been reported in the last 24 hours, Dr. Walter M. Dickie, secretary of the state board of health and director of the anti-plague committee, announced. The total death list is below 30.

A further favorable indication was that no new cases of the disease have been reported since yesterday. The total cases since the flare-up Oct. 19, is 36.

YOUNG WOMAN HELD AS MEMBER OF ROBBER BAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Beatrice Kaufman, 20 year old bobbed hair blonde, was arrested in Brooklyn today as the "two gun" woman confederate of four men bandits who held up the King's county post of the Veterans of the World War last Saturday night and robbed 15 members of jewelry and cash totalling $2,500.

Two of the four men also were arrested.

FUMES FILL BUILDING; HUNDREDS IN PANIC

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 8—Hundreds of employes of the American Printing Company's plant in this city fled in panic late today when sulphur dioxide gas escaping from a large tank in the blue dye room filled the building. Four employes were taken to a hospital unconscious. Fifty five others were treated in the company's hospital.

The fire department was called out to assist in rescuing employes, many of them women, who were on upper floors of the factory and feared to descend the stairs in the face of fumes from the dye room which is on the ground floor. Ladders were raised and many were carried down from the windows of the second and third floors of the building.

Those taken to hospitals, all pronounced by physicians to be in a serious condition, were: Harry Haywood, David Fisher, Duncan Sinclair, and John Mello, all of Fall River.

The tank of gas, used for mixing dyes, did not explode, but from some unknown cause it gave way, allowing the fumes to escape, officials of the plant said.

The American Printing Company operates several cotton mills here as well as its finishing plants.

TURKEY PRICES DUE FOR BIG DROP, DEALERS SAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—A sharp drop in the wholesale price of turkeys for dealers today to predict the lowest prices in 10 years for the Thanksgiving day bird. PASTOR WARNS AGAINST RELIGIOUS SALESMEN AND "TRICK CHURCHES"

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Religious prophets are replaced by promoters and the salesman of religion takes the place of the minister when "stunt, circus, or trick churches" supercede the old fashioned country church, Rev. C. M. McConnell, of Chicago, told the student section of the seventh annual conference of the American Country Life Association at its opening session here tonight.

Speaking on the subject "the present rural condition—what can the church do to meet it?" Rev. McConnell declared that the task of the church was to interpret issues confronting it. "There is still a place for a denominational church in the country community, but not room enough for competing denominations," he asserted. "The church is a human, vital, living thing, made up of men, women and children. It has no place in the country community unless it provides the basis for fellowship and good will."

WANTS GIRLS BANNED AS GOLF CADDIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Girls between the ages of 10 and 13 are employed by golf clubs in the city's outlying districts as caddies, and have been found working in pool rooms, racking pool balls and in bowling alleys setting up pins, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, director of the woman's bureau of the police department said today.

Mrs. Hamilton announced that a special service would be established by her department to protect women and girls. One of the problems to be taken up, she said, was the employment of young girls as extras in motion picture studios in Queens.

WILL ASK COURTS TO SAVE THE NATURAL GAS SUPPLY IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8—Legal action upon points admitted to be of doubtful value was the last remaining hope of approximately 20,000 Columbus families that they will have a supply of natural gas after midnight Monday.

Notice that gas in the Federal Gas and Fuel company mains will be shut off at midnight Monday was received by Mayor Thomas at the City Hall at 2 p .m. today. City council in a formal session directed City Attorney Leach to open court proceedings to prevent the company from carrying out its program and authorizing him to use the full financial resources of the city in retaining legal or other advice as he sees fit.

The company offered an alternative, a thirty day stay of the order under condition that a rate of 67½ cents per 1000 cubic feet be authorized during the period.

FRENCHMEN FIGHT DUEL TO DEATH IN DESERTED BUILDING

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 8—A vacant room in a building here was used as a "field of honor" by two Frenchmen today—and when the smoke of battle cleared the men lay dead on the floor, each with a bullet in his head.

Pierre Biagioli, of French-Italian extraction, was called upon by J. N. Fournaire, a French baker, to explain attentions alleged to have been paid to Fournaire's wife, the mother of two children. Fournaire spent the last two months in jail on a charge lodged by a 14 year old girl.

He was released and returning home he is said to have heard whisperings concerning his wife and his friend.

Fournaire summoned Biagioli seeking an explanation and they met this morning going to the vacant room in the bakery building.

Coolidge Does Not Propose To Call Extra Session of Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(By The A. P.)—President Coolidge does not contemplate calling the new Congress into special session after next March 4, nor does he now expect to present any comprehensive plan of tax reduction to the present Congress at the short session which will begin next month.

White House spokesmen in outlining the President's views today indicated that farm legislation and the annual appropriation bills would comprise the principal subjects of congressional action at the coming session. Mr. Coolidge late today announced the personnel of the agricultural commission he has had in mind for some time as an agency to study farm needs and it is hoped that its recommendations can be formulated in time for action upon them by Congress before March 4.

Tax Reduction to Go Over

Insofar as tax reduction is concerned it was made known that President Coolidge just now does not think it advisable to reopen the whole question of taxation at the short session of a Congress which has but recently declared its position on the subject. He has not, however, determined on the recommendations he will submit to the session beginning in December and meanwhile will study the advisability of taxation recommendations along with others.

The President's position on legislative problems was given after a day of conferences with congressional leaders. Senate spokesmen frankly expressed the hope that President Coolidge would not call a special session, declaring the country has shown no desire for immediate additional legislation. Farm measures, if necessary, they declared, could be passed at the short session, while another year would, in this opinion, develop the possibilities of tax reduction.

Keep Looking Young

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by the olive color, 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

Boys Admit They Killed Companion

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—The body of Ernest Schwer Jr., 13, who disappeared from his Brooklyn home 10 days ago, was found by detectives in an old ash dump in Long Island today. Police said they were led to the spot by four boys, who admitted their part in the killing and confessed they had hidden the body through fear of the consequences.

The boys are Arthur Meighan 12, Harold Meighan, 11 his brother, Adam Rotunda, 12, and Charles Hirschfield, 14, all of Richmond Hill.

Rotunda, after he had been threatened with arrest and "treated" to a plate of ice cream, told Assistant District Attorney David W. Wolfe, that Arthur Meighan had shot Schwer accidentally with a .22 calibre rifle and that after concealing the body they had agreed to keep the affair secret. The other boys corroborated his story.

Rotunda said he gave Arthur Meighan money with which to buy the rifle from a mail order house on Oct. 25. The gun arrived on the 28 and the five boys who went to the school in Richmond Hill decided to try it out on the chipmunks which they knew were plentiful near the cemetery.

Each boy, Rotunda said, was to have two shots. Schwer had taken his and was boosting Hirschfield to the branch of a tree when Arthur Meighan said: "Give me the gun. I'll take a shot."

As Meighan rested the rifle on a stump behind Schwer to take aim at another tree it went off unexpectedly and the bullet going wild, lodged in Schwer's right temple, Rotunda said. Schwer fell to the ground and his companions tried to revive him with water. They then discovered he was dead, became frightened and decided to hide the body.

Dragging the body to the edge of the ash dump, 25 feet below the level of the swamp in which they were playing, they rolled it down into a clump of bushes, pulled the dead lad's cap over his face and went home, agreeing on the way not to divulge the secret. They stuck to their agreement in the face of insistent questioning by the police since Schwer's disappearance until last night when Rotunda broke down under the combined pressure of hunger and the threat of arrest.

BLAIR AND DANDO SWAP PUNCHES MONDAY NIGHT; CLASSY PRELIMS

The boxing fans are getting on edge and can hardly wait for Dr Joseph Lake to ring the bell Monday night on the Dando-Blair bout which has all the indications of being one of the hardest contested matches ever held in this section.

"When I want to see real scrapping I go to Portsmouth," one up-the-river fan wrote and enclosed with his letter was a check for eight ringside seats. It is doubtful if there is another city in Ohio where the sport is conducted better, or where the boxers as a whole give the fans a better run for their money.

One traveling man remarked that he never missed a Portsmouth boxing show if he were any place nearby, and that he never failed to get plenty of action for his expenditure. It is certain that Monday night's bouts will be no exception to the rule as in almost every bout there is considerable rivalry existing.

Pete Wagner of Chillicothe, who has been engaged as referee will have little time to loaf. The Dando-Blair bout will certainly keep a referee on his toes as these boys will have few idle moments from the start and throw precaution to the wind. Neither believes the other can knock him out and with this being the case the fans will have no cause for complaint. Let the best man win.

Other bouts on the card will introduce Red Wise, Kid Hickman, Speedy Ballinger, Jack Blackburn of Huntington, Jack Crawford, Joey Hughes, Johnnie Lucas and Charlie Wells. The judges will be Ralph Delamater and Edward "Buck" Yenger. Let's go.

Beaver Girls in Tie; Boys Defeat Stockdale

The basket ball game between the Beaver-Stockdale Girls ended in a tie score of 2-2 which was played on the latter's court Wednesday afternoon. Both teams made strenuous efforts to cage another basket before the whistle blew but the breaks were against them.

S. H. S. lassies showed superior pass work and defense while Beaver was not far behind. Two personals and one technical foul were called on one of Beaver's players, while S. H. S. played a clean game without one foul against them. This was the fastest game that has been staged on S. H. S. court this season and no doubt the return game will be just as interesting.

MR. BOWSER, SCIENTIST

Why He Failed to Secure a Niche in the Hall of Fame

MR. BOWSER was walking the library floor, the other evening apparently buried in deep thought. His hands were clasped behind his back, there was a far-away look in his eyes, and he occasionally mumbled to himself. The astute family cat was safely hidden under the sofa waiting for something to happen, while Mrs. Bowser, too, felt a calamity on the way as she watched him pacing to and fro. She thought that Napoleon must have looked just that way on the eve of the battle of Waterloo. Finally he broke the silence.

"Mrs. Bowser," he solemnly asked, "how do the great inventors and scientists make their discoveries, think you?"

"Why, by experiments, of course," was the reply.

"That's it exactly," he enthusiastically agreed. "For once in your life you have hit the nail on the head. Yes, they patiently and heroically spend days, weeks, months and even years on one single experiment to benefit mankind. But one doesn't have to be a scientist to make discoveries. Any layman, if he will take the time, might also astound the world."

"Yes, that's true," said Mrs. Bowser with a smile. "Take, for instance, the misguided chap who sat on a hot stove and made the discovery that it hurt. He had probably never delved into metaphysics, or—"

"Stop right there, woman," sternly ordered Mr. Bowser. "I believe I am on the eve of a discovery that may put me in the Hall of Fame, and have been good enough to talk it over with you, but if you are going to make silly remarks we will drop the matter right here and now."

By a mighty effort Mrs. Bowser straightened her face and tried to look abashed. He continued his indoor hike for a time, but finally paused and continued:

"At the present time there is a controversy on between two noted scientists. No doubt you have heard of the skillful and famous Dr. A. Moses Hash of Belgium?"

"No, I think not," she replied.

"Well, you read such light stuff that I don't wonder. Is the name of Dr. Peabody Toots of Russia familiar to you?"

"Never heard of Toots," admitted Mrs. Bowser. "In fact, so many colic and corn cures come out almost every day that I can't keep a record of the inventors."

"Great Ned and Jerusalem!" groaned Mr. Bowser, regarding her with a look of mingled pity and contempt. "Don't confuse these great scientists with colic and corns. Next thing you will be telling me that Edison invented the parlor match and Ford the velocipede. I do wish your mind would turn more towards weighty matters so that we could sometimes discuss the arts and sciences to mutual advantage. It's a pity you do not do more deep thinking."

"Well, I'll try to read the encyclopedia tomorrow," promised Mrs. Bowser. "Tell me, are these doctors going in vaudeville in America or something like that?"

"Certainly not," he sharply told her. "I repeat, they are having a controversy over a matter that for centuries has been in dispute between the scientists. They are at odds about which part of the body goes to sleep first. Dr. Hash says one thing, Dr. Toots another, and the whole scientific world is taking part in the discussion. Now, what is your contention? Is it the feet, the brain, the legs, arms, eyes or what that drops off into oblivion first?"

"Why, the brain, of course."

"Don't be so sure of that, little lady," smiled Mr. Bowser. "There are thousands of learned men who will tell you different and prove it to your satisfaction. As to my opinion, I am not positive at the present moment, but within the next twelve hours I rather think the world will know the truth. I am going to make an experiment this very night. I shall stretch myself out on the sofa with notebook and pencil in hand and record my feelings until I lost in slumber. So far no scientist has thought of this plan, and it strikes me it will solve the problem."

"You'll probably catch cold," warned Mrs. Bowser.

"I can't help it," he said. "We must take those chances to all our fellow-men, and if I lose my life from pneumonia I won't be the first to die for science. Before you go to bed and leave me alone here, tell the cook I want none of her snoring. The house must be absolutely quiet if I am to get results. One snore and she's fired. Also put the cat out. If that feline starts a fight on the back fence tonight and annoys me she'll accompany me away in a bag tomorrow."

Mrs. Bowser sighed and left the room, and after a hurried cigar Mr. Bowser set about his experiment. There was the expression of a martyr on his face as he switched off the lights. A moment later, in trying to reach the sofa in the dark, he stumbled over a stool and fell with a crash. As he lay on his back and gnashed his teeth his hair stood on end as he heard Mrs. Bowser call

"Don't be frightened, Bridget. Mr. Bowser is speeding toward the Hall of Fame, but must be having engine trouble. Go to sleep again, and remember about that snoring."

A mental note of the remark was made, and Mr. Bowser vowed to get even. Just wait until he was asked for money for a bargain sale. Crawling around the room on hands and knees he finally located the lounge, on which he lay at full length prepared to solve the great scientific problem for once and all. Within one minute he had made a discovery. to the cook:

He found it was impossible to make notes in the dark. By skillful manœuvring he switched on the library light, pulled down its shade and recorded his sensations as follows:

"Outside of bruised knee and lump on head—durn that stool—am resting easy. Sarcastic Mrs. Bowser in bed. House quiet, my mind clear.

"Seems to be a cold draft coming from somewhere, but it must be imagination. No sign of sleep as yet. If I should pass away during this experiment permission is hereby given to place my statue in the Hall of Fame.

"There is a funny feeling in my right toe. My brain is very active. Almost positive now that sleep really begins with the feet.

"Shivered slightly, but it must be imagination. Peculiar sensation in my left kneecap. Yes, sleep surely approaches through the lower extremities.

"Sharp pain in my left leg. Were my mind not so keen on this experiment I believe I would now be asleep. Shall count sheep jumping over a fence to help matters along.

"Queer sensations, first in one leg and then in the other. Sleep, beginning in the feet, as I have always thought, is trying to overcome me. Sheep seem to be laughing at me, but it must be owing to strain on the brain.

"More queer sensations in legs. Could swear someone was tickling them.

"Just sneezed and there were queer sensations up and down my whole body as I did. Wish I could make myself realize that what I think is a cold draft is only my imagination. Brain still very active. Laughing sheep look so funny going over a fence. Could swear one winked at me.

"Body feels cold; throat getting sore; prickly sensation again in both feet. Dr. Hash, I now feel sure, will have proof of his contention.

"Have sneezed again, but—"

But the record ended right there. Mr. Bowser happened to look down at his feet and suddenly discovered what caused the prickly sensations. A wee mouse was playing a game on his legs, and it was just about this time that the cat crawled out from under the sofa and got on the job. For the next two minutes there was clawing and squeaking on Mr. Bowser's reclining form, and he uttered a whoop that roused the household. Mrs. Bowser found the amateur scientist rolling on the floor and yelling for someone to come to the rescue.

"What in the world has happened?" she asked.

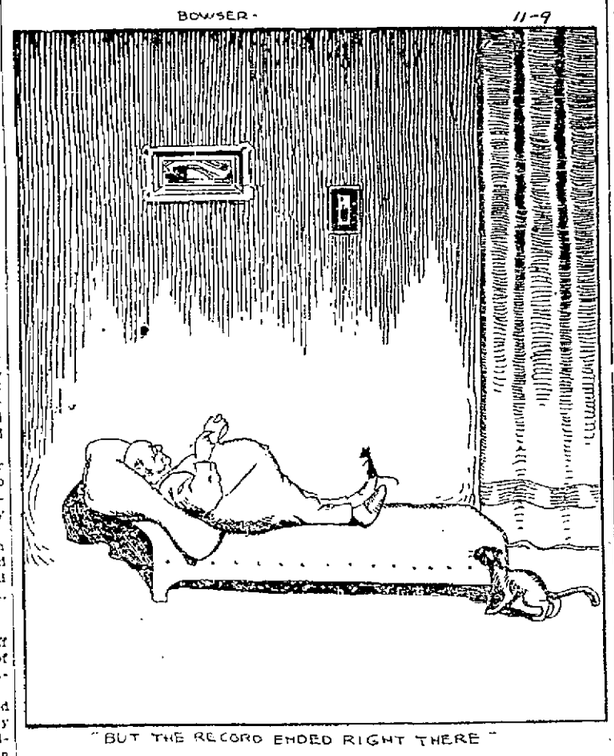

"Rats!" he shouted. "Great big monsters that were beginning to devour me alive. By George, but that cat is a heroine."

"Here's your monster," laughed Mrs. Bowser as she took the victim away from the cat and held it up. "You're greatest danger was from that open window, which I supposed you would close."

"By George, but was that window open on the back of my neck?" roared Mr. Bowser. "Ha, ha! I see it all now! That was your little scheme to get rid of me and gain my life insurance. Well, if I did not solve my scientific problem I at least have learned to what lengths you will go to get rid of me. Just you wait, woman, until my lawyer sees your lawyer at daylight tomorrow."

"Attaboy, Bowse!" chuckled Mrs. Bowser as she patted him on the back. "Keep keyed up like that until I can get a hot footbath ready and we'll knock that cold into a cocked hat."

And he followed her upstairs as meek and humble as a boy during his first day at college.

"BUT THE RECORD ENDED RIGHT THERE"

JUST BREEZING ALONG

The Editor of the Arizona Kicker Takes His Pen in Hand

QUITE by accident the other day, in looking over our subscripton books, we discovered that old Bill Wharp, of Pizen Creek, has been receiving The Kicker all his life without the payment of a single penny. Mounting our fastest mule, and with guns in every pocket, we hastened to his shanty for a thorough understanding of the matter. We got it. Before we could even dismount four bullets went through our new plug hat, another raked our left ear, while the sixth hit our mule in such a tender spot that he had us back to the office in record time. Truth to tell, we made no effort to stop him. There are some people in this world who are glad to let well enough alone. We are one of them.

Some admirer in Montana last week boxed up a wildcat and sent it on to us with his best compliments. We thank him for his good intentions, but must ask that no one ever again, no matter how enthusiastic they may become over our editorial masterpieces, send us anything wild. The smile of pride had hardly left our face when that wildcat broke loose, devoured four suits of clothes, one overcoat and four hats, and so badly maltreated our fighting dog that we haven't seen him since.

In clipping from an exchange the other day we ran across an item which stated that in a certain English city the women so far outnumbered the men that over 10,000 beautiful females were rapidly becoming old maids, and that an enterprising Yankee was sending to that port a shipload of cats. The situation here is quite the contrary. We believe that if a thousand marriageable young women were brought to this town each and every one would find a husband within a week. We also believe that 999 of the thousand would wish they hadn't before the end of the first fortnight.

The latest addition to the population of this town last week was a Mr. Percy De Swath, who blew in from California to permanently locate here. He seemed a nice young chap and created a splendid impression, especially among our enterprising real estate sharks, but we might have known that no man who lisps, parts his hair in the middle and wears spats has any business in these parts. A few days after his arrival he walked into the dry goods store of "Bull" Connolly and asked to see a pair of pink pajamas, and after the smoke from "Bull's" gun had cleared Mr. De Swath was carted away to a cot in the hospital.

Just the moment that young man can stand a train ride our population will drop back to normal again.

Owing to the activity of the police in the East, quite a few holdup men have decided the West is really the place where their efforts to earn a livelihood will be appreciated. A band of about six got off the train here one day recently to see the sights. After looking us over carefully they seemed to be particularly interested in the Sagebrush Bank, but when the paying teller of that institution, who happens to be Hair-Trigger Johnson, got through shooting, their next visit was to the morgue. Our right hand of hospitality is always extended to strangers, but look out for the left one if you are not on the level.

Like the poor, the wayward son we have with us always, but this town is not the healthiest place in the world for him to show off in. It seems that one Silas Pratt, of Chicago, honored us with his presence a few months ago and felt he would like to take away with him as a souvenir one of our best bronchnes, but he didn't go far after the vigilante committee got on his trail. The other day his father arrived to locate the misguided youth, but the records at the coroner's office stated the cold facts, and there was nothing for Mr. Pratt to do but shake hands all around and congratulate us on our business-like methods.

We say it again, and we say it with one hand on our gun, that the columns of this newspaper shall never be used for publicity purposes. Old Hank Smith has been pestering us for the past six months to devote at least half a page to the great ability of his daughter as a poetess, but after reading three of her effusions we were attacked by colic and had to see a doctor. We freely admit we are no Shakespearian scholar, but we know that that girl should continue passing hash at the restaurant where she is employed. Of course, Hank's subscription will stop, but our readers shall be protected at any cost.

Truly, it is a mind free and clear that makes a man glad he is alive. Since we have ceased lying about our circulation our health and spirits have improved 50 per cent, and all have noticed a great and agreeable change in us. We haven't an ache or pain, and go about our multifarious duties with a song in our heart. It was an awful burden on our back to keep lying from week to week, claiming a circulation of millions, but we feel sure no one believed us and that no great harm was done.

As we were coming from a poker party at midnight the other night six shots fired in rapid succession whizzed passed our ears and we saw a scared critter running up Main Street for dear life. We recognized our esteemed contemporary and paid little or no attention to his seventeenth attempt to assassinate us. If it rests with him we will live to a ripe old age. How such a poor shot ever got in the newspaper game has long been a mystery to us.

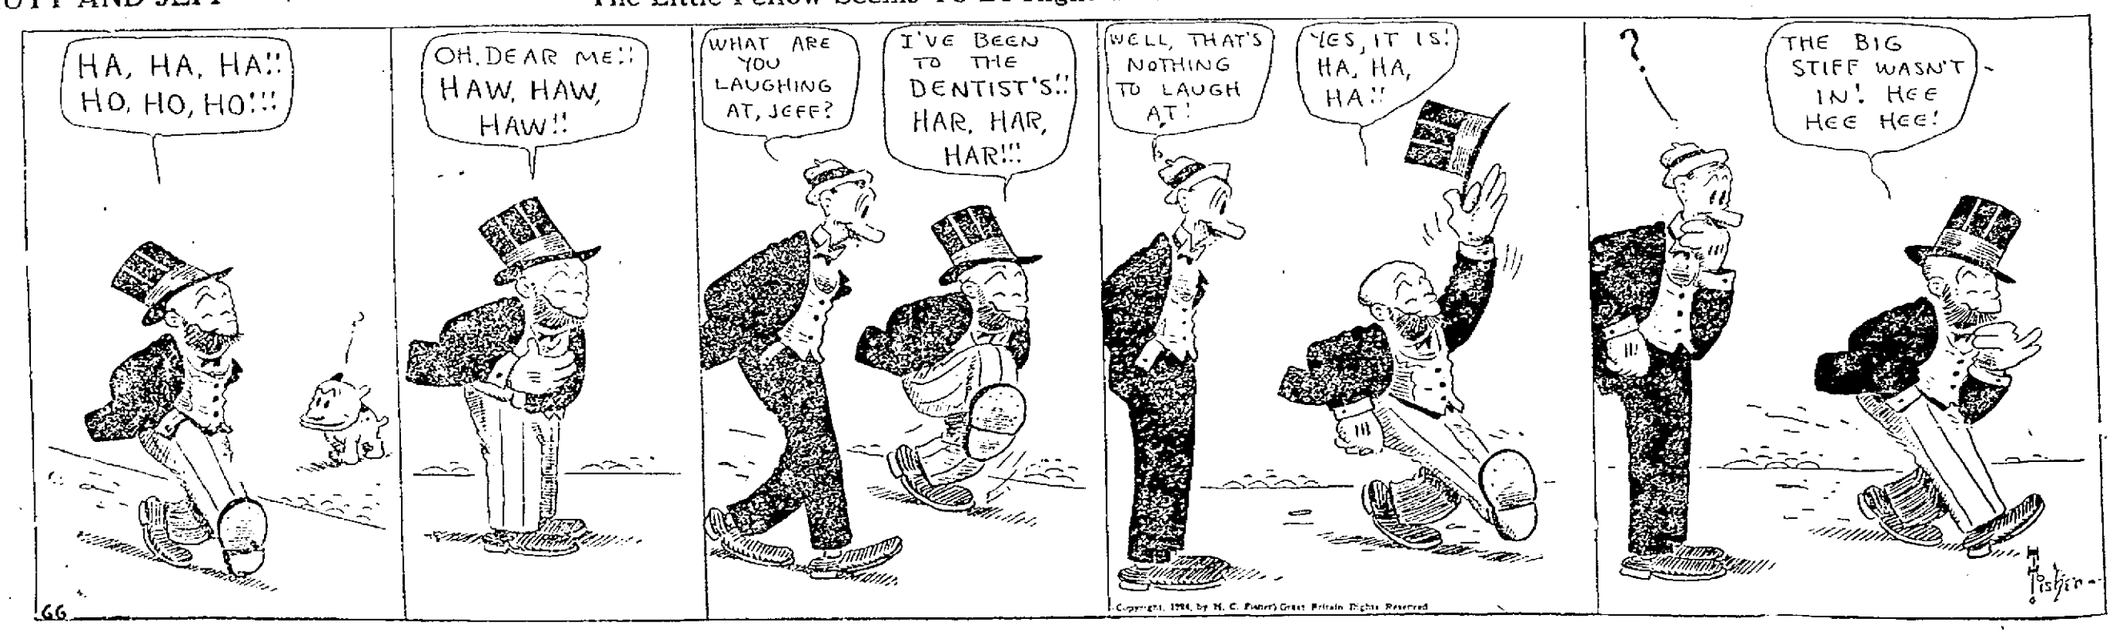

When cowboys come to town for a good time we make allowances and expect there will be more or less noise and damage to property. They are a hardy reckless lot and must get the whoops out of their systems just so often or bust. We find no fault with this but want to make it plain that the next cow-puncher who shoots the weather-vane off the top of our roof will be occupying a cold spot in our private graveyard.

Our fathers got along very comfortably with candles and were able to read all the scandals and divorces published and we seem to be doing nightly well in this community with gas. But now comes a report that some promoters are planning to install an electric light plant in this town. As a taxpayer we are dead against it; as editor of The Kicker we are opposed to such unnecessary expense. As mayor of the town, however we will withhold our opinion until we are asked by the promoters for a secret conference. An office-holder owes it to himself and family to keep an open mind on such subjects until it is time for him to act.

Because a committee led Joe White out of town the other day by the ear and advised him to go hence, its members have been bitterly criticized in some quarters and an investigation demanded. There will be none. That committee, rather, is to be commended. Joe bought the Red Front drug store a short time ago, and we won't go so far as to say that he was in league with the undertakers, or had anything to do with the awful jump in the mortality rate in this community. It is a fact, however, that a Chinaman for whom he filled a prescription on Sunday night was gathered to his forefathers in a hurry. Joe made a good cow-puncher and was well liked on the ranch, but as a druggist no one could even trust his castor oil, and the committee did a good thing when it sent him to other parts to practice a profession he know nothing about.

As mayor, postmaster, sheriff and editor we are a mighty busy man, and while we try to be patient and obliging there is always a limit. Last Tuesday a critter in Tombstone City wrote that he would arrive in town early that day to kill us, and begged as a special favor to him that we remain in our office to be shot. We did, but he failed to favor us with a visit, and we shall never neglect our multifarious duties again to oblige a stranger. There ought to be a law against fooling with an editor's feelings. He wants to know whether he will be on hand to get out his paper, and whether it will be unnecessary to work his brain on advance matter for future editions.

STOCKS GIVE REMARKABLE DEMONSTRATION OF STRENGTH

Enormous Demand for Rail Shares; Sales Made In Huge Blocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Buying of railroad stocks continued with increased intensity in today's market, practically all of the popular issues soaring to new high records for the year on gains running from 1 to 3½ points. Total sales exceeded the million share mark for the first time in any half day session in five years.

Strength of the rails, for which there was a enormous speculative and investment demand, permeated the industrial group where such leaders as U. S. Steel common, American Can and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe also sold at their best prices in many years.

Unusually heavy profit taking took place on the rally but the demand for stocks was so strong that it failed to have any appreciable effect on the general advance. The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,300,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Stock prices gave another remarkable demonstration of strength at the opening of today's market, which was featured by the enormous demand for railroad shares. Most of the initial sales were in blocks of a thousand shares or more, Pere Marquette standing out with a gain of 2½ points on one transaction of 2,300 shares, New York Central, Frisco common, Atlantic Coast Line, Wabash preferred "A," St. Louis Southwestern and Seaboard Air Line also sold at new 1924 peak prices. U. S. Steel touched 112½, the highest price since 1919, and Baldwin climbed 2⅝.

Brokers reported that the opening scramble for stocks was the most sensational trading since the break which marked the beginning of the deflation period in 1910. Twenty five rails had attained new high prices for the year in the first half hour with half that number of industrials in new high ground. Baldwin, Chicago and Northwestern, National Lead, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, American Can and Southern Pacific all sold two or more points above last night's closing figures while scores of others moved up a point or more. U. S. Steel touched 113 and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe 125. Foreign exchanges opened strong, demand sterling touching another new high at 4.59¾.

The boxing fans are getting on edge and can hardly wait for Dr Joseph Lako to ring the bell Monday night on the Dando-Blair bout which has all the indications of being one of the hardest contested matches ever held in this section.

"When I want to see real scrapping I go to Portsmouth," one up-the-river fan wrote and enclosed with his letter was a check for eight ringside seats. It is doubtful if there is another city in Ohio where the sport is conducted better, or where the boxers as a whole give the fans a better run for their money.

One traveling man remarked that he never missed a Portsmouth boxing show if he were any place nearby, and that he never failed to get plenty of action for his expenditure. It is certain that Monday night's bouts will be no exception to the rule as in almost every bout there is considerable rivalry existing.

Pete Wagner of Chillicothe, who has been engaged as referee will have little time to loaf. The Dando-Blair bout will certainly keep a referee on his toes as these boys will have few idle moments from the start and throw precantion to the wind. Neither believes the other can knock him out and with this being the case the fans will have no cause for complaint. Let the best man win.

Other bouts on the card will introduce Red Wise, Kid Hickman, Speedy Ballinger, Jack Blackburn of Huntington, Jack Crawford, Joey Hughes, Johnnie Lucas and Charlie Wells. The judges will be Ralph Delamater and Edward "Buck" Yenger. Let's go.

Beaver Girls in Tie; Boys Defeat Stockdale

The basket ball game between the Beaver-Stockdale Girls ended in a tie score of 2-2 which was played on the latter's court Wednesday afternoon. Both teams made strenuous efforts to cage another basket before the whistle blew but the breaks were against them.

S. H. S. lassies showed superior pass work and defense while Beaver was not far behind. Two personals and one technical foul were called on one of Beaver's players, while S. H. S. played a clean game without one foul against them. This was the fastest game that has been staged on S. H. S. court this season and no doubt the return game will be just as interesting.

The line up:

B. H. S.		S. H. S.
Wickline	R F	White
Pratt	L F	Balsiger
Willis	R G	M. Stir
Offenbaker	C	Bennett
Schrader	R G	Wilson
Chandler	L G	E. Stir

Subs—Brown for Balsiger. Field goals, Wickline 7, White 1. Referee, Beoddy.

The Beaver Lads triumphed over S. H. S., with the handsome score of 13-3. Both teams played hard fumbling the ball and making numerous errors. Riegel of Stockdale shot the best field goal, while Schrader of Beaver made all his teams field goals.

The line up:

B. H. S.		S. H. S.
Pratt	R F	Samson
Schrader	L F	Riegel
Bevins	C	Nickell
Pyle	R G	Burgess
McMann	L G	Daniels

MR. BOWSER, SCIENTIST

Why He Failed to Secure a Niche in the Hall of Fame

MR. BOWSER was walking the library floor, the other evening apparently buried in deep thought. His hands were clasped behind his back, there was a far-away look in his eyes, and he occasionally mumbled to himself. The astute family cat was safely hidden under the sofa waiting for something to happen, while Mrs. Bowser, too, felt a calamity on the way as she watched him pacing to and fro. She thought that Napoleon must have looked just that way on the eve of the battle of Waterloo. Finally he broke the silence.

"Mrs. Bowser," he solemnly asked, "how do the great inventors and scientists make their discoveries, think you?"

"Why, by experiments, of course," was the reply.

"That's it exactly," he enthusiastically agreed. "For once in your life you have hit the nail on the head. Yes, they patiently and heroically spend days, weeks, months and even years on one single experiment to benefit mankind. But one doesn't have to be a scientist to make discoveries. Any layman, if he will take the time, might also astound the world."

"Yes, that's true," said Mrs. Bowser with a smile. "Take, for instance, the misguided chap who sat on a hot stove and made the discovery that it hurt. He had probably never delved into metaphysics, or—"

"Stop right there, woman," sternly ordered Mr. Bowser. "I believe I am on the eve of a discovery that may put me in the Hall of Fame, and have been good enough to talk it over with you, but if you are going to make silly remarks we will drop the matter right here and now."

By a mighty effort Mrs. Bowser straightened her face and tried to look abashed. He continued his indoor hike for a time, but finally paused and continued:

"At the present time there is a controversy on between two noted scientists. No doubt you have heard of the skillful and famous Dr. A. Moses Hash of Belgium?"

"No, I think not," she replied.

"Well, you read such light stuff that I don't wonder. Is the name of Dr. Peabody Toots of Russia familiar to you?"

"Never heard of Toots," admitted Mrs. Bowser. "In fact, so many colic and corn cures come out almost every day that I can't keep a record of the inventors."

"Great Ned and Jerusalem!" groaned Mr. Bowser, regarding her with a look of mingled pity and contempt. "Don't confuse these great scientists with colic and corns. Next thing you will be telling me that Edison invented the parlor match and Ford the velocipede. I do wish your mind would turn more towards weighty matters so that we could sometimes discuss the arts and sciences to mutual advantage. It's a pity you do not do more deep thinking."

"Well, I'll try to read the encyclopedia tomorrow," promised Mrs. Bowser. "Tell me, are these doctors going in vaudeville in America or something like that?"

"Certainly not," he sharply told her. "I repeat, they are having a controversy over a matter that for centuries has been in dispute between the scientists. They are at odds about which part of the body goes to sleep first. Dr. Hash says one thing, Dr. Toots another, and the whole scientific world is taking part in the discussion. Now, what is your contention? Is it the feet, the brain, the legs, arms, eyes or what that drops off into oblivion first?"

"Why, the brain, of course."

"Don't be so sure of that, little lady," smiled Mr. Bowser. "There are thousands of learned men who will tell you different and prove it to your satisfaction. As to my opinion, I am not positive at the present moment, but within the next twelve hours I rather think the world will know the truth. I am going to make an experiment this very night. I shall stretch myself out on the sofa with notebook and pencil in hand and record my feelings until lost in slumber. So far no scientist has thought of this plan, and it strikes me it will solve the problem."

"You'll probably catch cold," warned Mrs. Bowser.

"I can't help it," he said. "We must take those chances to aid our fellow-men, and if I lose my life from pneumonia I won't be the first to die for science. Before you go to bed and leave me alone here, tell the cook I want none of her snoring. The house must be absolutely quiet if I am to get results. One snore and she's fired. Also put the cat out. If that feline starts a fight on the back fence tonight and annoys me she'll accompany me away in a bag tomorrow."

Mrs. Bowser sighed and left the room, and after a hurried cigar Mr. Bowser set about his experiment. There was the expression of a martyr on his face as he switched off the lights. A moment later, in trying to reach the sofa in the dark, he stumbled over a stool and fell with a crash. As he lay on his back and gnashed his teeth his hair stood on end as he heard Mrs. Bowser call

"Don't be frightened, Bridget, Mr. Bowser is speeding toward the Hall of Fame, but must be having engine trouble. Go to sleep again, and remember about that snoring."

A mental note of the remark was made, and Mr. Bowser vowed to get even. Just wait until he was asked for money for a bargain sale. Crawling around the room on hands and knees he finally located the lounge, on which he lay at full length prepared to solve the great scientific problem for once and all. Within one minute he had made a discovery. to the cook:

He found it was impossible to make notes in the dark. By skillful manœuvring he switched on the library light, pulled down its shade and recorded his sensations as follows:

"Outside of bruised knee and lump on head—durn that stool—am resting easy. Sarcastic Mrs. Bowser in bed. House quiet, my mind clear.

"Seems to be a cold draft coming from somewhere, but it must be imagination. No sign of sleep as yet. If I should pass away during this experiment permission is hereby given to place my statue in the Hall of Fame.

"There is a funny feeling in my right toe. My brain is very active. Almost positive now that sleep really begins with the feet.

"Shivered slightly, but it must be imagination. Peculiar sensation in my left kneecap. Yes, sleep surely approaches through the lower extremities.

"Sharp pain in my left leg. Were my mind not so keen on this experiment I believe I would now be asleep. Shall count sheep jumping over a fence to help matters along.

"Queer sensations, first in one leg and then in the other. Sleep, beginning in the feet, as I have always thought, is trying to overcome me. Sheep seem to be laughing at me, but it must be owing to strain on the brain.

"More queer sensations in legs. Could swear someone was tickling them.

"Just sneezed and there were queer sensations up and down my whole body as I did. Wish I could make myself realize that what I think is a cold draft is only my imagination. Brain still very active. Laughing sheep look so funny going over a fence. Could swear one winked at me.

"Body feels cold; throat getting sore; prickly sensation again in both feet. Dr. Hash, I now feel sure, will have proof of his contention.

"Have sneezed again, but—"

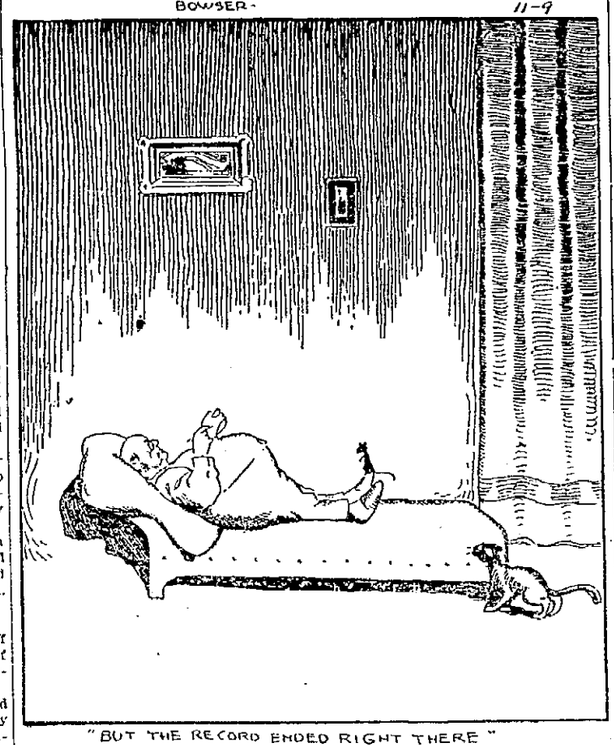

But the record ended right there. Mr. Bowser happened to look down at his feet and suddenly discovered what caused the prickly sensations. A wee mouse was playing a game on his legs, and it was just about this time that the cat crawled out from under the sofa and got on the job. For the next two minutes there was clawing and squeaking on Mr. Bowser's reclining form, and he uttered a whoop that roused the household. Mrs. Bowser found the amateur scientist rolling on the floor and yelling for someone to come to the rescue.

"What in the world has happened?" she asked.

"Rats!" he shouted. "Great big monsters that were beginning to devour me alive. By George, but that cat is a heroine."

"Here's your monster," laughed Mrs. Bowser as she took the victim away from the cat and held it up. "You're greatest danger was from that open window, which I supposed you would close."

"By George, but was that window open on the back of my neck?" roared Mr. Bowser. "Ha, ha! I see it all now! That was your little scheme to get rid of me and get my life insurance. Well, if I did not solve my scientific problem I at least have learned to what lengths you will go to get rid of me. Just you wait, woman, until my lawyer sees your lawyer at daylight tomorrow."

"BUT THE RECORD ENDED RIGHT THERE"

"Attaboy, Bowse!" chuckled Mrs. Bowser as she patted him on the back. "Keep keyed up like that until I can get a hot footbath ready and we'll knock that cold into a cocked hat."

And he followed her upstairs as meek and humble as a boy during his first day at college.

The Editor of the Arizona Kicker Takes His Pen in Hand

QUITE by accident the other day, in looking over our subscripton books, we discovered that old Bill Wharp, of Pizen Creek, has been receiving The Kicker all his life without the payment of a single penny. Mounting our fastest mule, and with guns in every pocket, we hastened to his shanty for a thorough understanding of the matter. We got it. Before we could even dismount four bullets went through our new plug hat, another raked our left ear, while the sixth hit our mule in such a tender spot that he had us back to the office in record time. Truth to tell, we made no effort to stop him. There are some people in this world who are glad to let well enough alone. We are one of them.

Some admirer in Montana last week boxed up a wildcat and sent it on to us with his best compliments. We thank him for his good intentions, but must ask that no one ever again, no matter how enthusiastic they may become over our editorial masterpieces, send us anything wild. The smile of pride had hardly left our face when that wildcat broke loose, devoured four suits of clothes, one overcoat and four hats, and so badly maltreated our fighting dog that we haven't seen him since.

In clipping from an exchange the other day we ran across an item which stated that in a certain English city the women so far outnumbered the men that over 10,000 beautiful females were rapidly becoming old maids, and that an enterprising Yankee was sending to that port a shipload of cats. The situation here is quite the contrary. We believe that if a thousand marriageable young women were brought to this town each and every one would find a husband within a week. We also believe that 999 of the thousand would wish they hadn't before the end of the first fortnight.

The latest addition to the population of this town last week was a Mr. Percy De Swath, who blew in from California to permanently locate here. He seemed a nice young chap and created a splendid impression, especially among our enterprising real estate sharks, but we might have known that no man who lisps, parts his hair in the middle and wears spats has any business in these parts. A few days after his arrival he walked into the dry goods store of "Bull" Connolly and asked to see a pair of pink pajamas, and after the smoke from "Bull's" gun had cleared Mr. De Swath was carted away to a cot in the hospital.

Just the moment that young man can stand a train ride our population will drop back to normal again.

Owing to the activity of the police in the East, quite a few hold-up men have decided the West is really the place where their efforts to earn a livelihood will be appreciated. A band of about six got off the train here one day recently to see the sights. After looking us over carefully they seemed to be particularly interested in the Sagebrush Bank, but when the paying teller of that institution, who happens to be Hair-Trigger Johnson, got through shooting, their next visit was to the morgue. Our right hand of hospitality is always extended to strangers, but look out for the left one if you are not on the level.

Like the poor, the wayward son we have with us always, but this town is not the healthiest place in the world for him to show off in. It seems that one Silas Pratt, of Chicago, honored us with his presence a few months ago and felt he would like to take away with him as a souvenir one of our best bronchoes, but he didn't go far after the vigilante committee got on his trail. The other day his father arrived to locate the misguided youth, but the records at the coroner's office stated the cold facts, and there was nothing for Mr. Pratt to do but shake hands all around and congratulate us on our business-like methods.

We say it again, and we say it with one hand on our gun, that the columns of this newspaper shall never be used for publicity purposes. Old Hank Smith has been pestering us for the past six months to devote at least half a page to the great ability of his daughter as a poetess, but after reading three of her effusions we were attacked by colic and had to see a doctor. We freely admit we are no Shakespearian scholar, but we know that that girl should continue passing hash at the restaurant where she is employed. Of course, Hank's subscription will stop, but our readers shall be protected at any cost.

Truly, it is a mind free and clear that makes a man glad he is alive. Since we have ceased lying about our circulation our health and spirits have improved 50 per cent, and all have noticed a great and agreeable change in us. We haven't an ache or pain, and go about our multifarious duties with a song in our heart. It was an awful burden on our back to keep lying from week to week, claiming a circulation of millions, but we feel sure no one believed us and that no great harm was done.

As we were coming from a poker party at midnight the other night six shots fired in rapid succession whizzed passed our ears and we saw a scared critter running up Main Street for dear life. We recognized our esteemed contemporary and paid little or no attention to his seventeenth attempt to assassinate us. If it rests with him we will live to a ripe old age. How such a poor shot ever got in the newspaper game has long been a mystery to us.

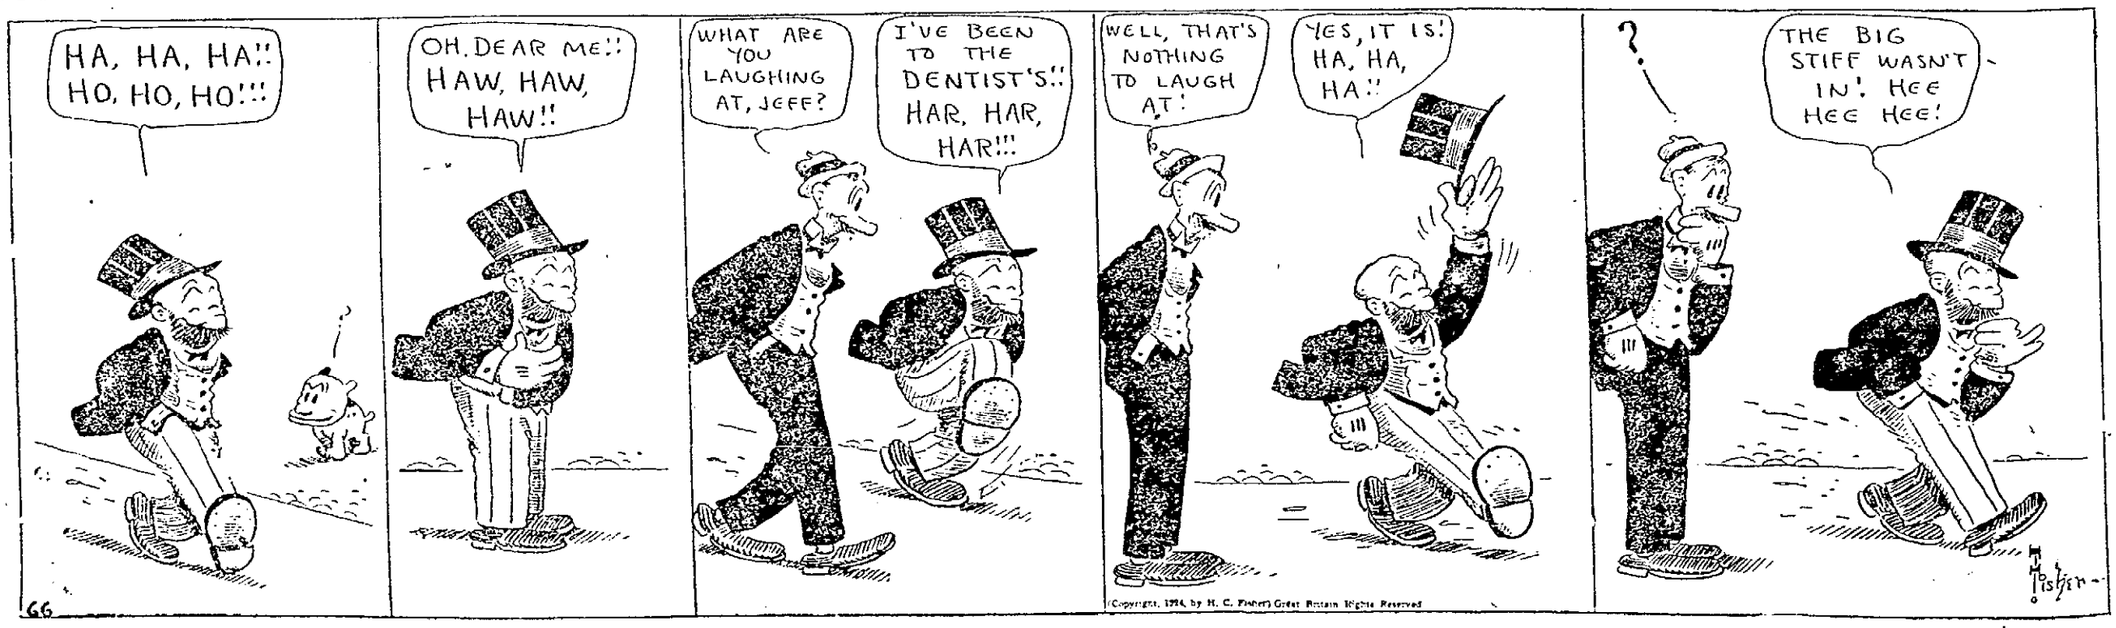

When cowboys come to town for a good time we make allowances and expect there will be more or less noise and damage to property. They are a hardy reckless lot and must get the whoops out of their systems just so often or bust. We find no fault with this but want to make it plain that the next cow-puncher who shoots the weather-vane off the top of our roof will be occupying a cold spot in our private graveyard.

Our fathers got along very comfortably with candles and were able to read all the scandals and divorces published and we seem to be doing nighty well in this community with gas. But now comes a report that some promoters are planning to install an electric light plant in this town. As a taxpayer we are dead against it; as editor of The Kicker we are opposed to such unnecessary expense. As mayor of the town, however we will withhold our opinion until we are asked by the promoters for a secret conference. An office-holder owes it to himself and family to keep an open mind on such subjects until it is time for him to act.

Because a committee led Joe White out of town the other day by the ear and advised him to go hence, its members have been bitterly criticized in some quarters and an investigation demanded. There will be none. That committee, rather, is to be commended. Joe bought the Red Front drug store a short time ago, and we won't go so far as to say that he was in league with the undertakers, or had anything to do with the awful jump in the mortality rate in this community. It is a fact, however, that a Chinaman for whom he filled a prescription on Sunday night was gathered to his forefathers in a hurry. Joe made a good cow-puncher and was well liked on the ranch, but as a druggist no one could even trust his castor oil, and the committee did a good thing when it sent him to other parts to practice a profession he knew nothing about.

As mayor, postmaster, sheriff and editor we are a mighty busy man, and while we try to be patient and obliging there is always a limit. Last Tuesday a critter in Tombstone City wrote that he would arrive in town early that day to kill us, and begged as a special favor to him that we remain in our office to be shot. We did, but he failed to favor us with a visit, and we shall never neglect our multifarious duties again to oblige a stranger. There ought to be a law against fooling with an editor's feelings. He wants to know whether he will be on hand to get out his paper, and whether it will be unnecessary to work his brain on advance matter for future editions.

STOCKS GIVE REMARKABLE DEMONSTRATION OF STRENGTH

Enormous Demand for Rail Shares; Sales Made In Huge Blocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Buying of railroad stocks continued with increased intensity in today's market, practically all of the popular issues soaring to new high records for the year on gains running from 1 to 3½ points. Total sales exceeded the million share mark for the first time in any half day session in five years.

Strength of the rails, for which there was a nenermous speculative and investment demand, permeated the industrial group where such leaders as U. S. Steel common, American Can and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe also sold at their best prices in many years.

Unusually heavy profit taking took place on the rally but the demand for stocks was so strong that it failed to have any appreciable efect on the general advance. The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,300,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Stock prices gave another remarkable demonstration of strength at the opening of today's market, which was featured by the enormous demand for railroad shares. Most of the initial sales were in blocks of a thousand shares or more, Pere Marquette standing out with a gain of 2½ points on one transaction of 2,200 shares, New York Central, Frisco common, Atlantic Coast Line, Wabash preferred "A," St. Louis Southwestern and Seaboard Air Line also sold at new 1924 peak prices. U. S. Steel touched 112¾, the highest price since 1919, and Baldwin climbed 2⅜.

Brokers reported that the opening scramble for stocks was the most sensational trading since the break which marked the beginning of the deflation period in 1919. Twenty five rails had attained new high prices for the year in the first half hour with half that number of industrials in new high ground. Baldwin, Chicago and Northwestern, National Lead, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, American Can and Southern Pacific all sold two or more points above last night's closing figures while scores of others moved up a point or more. U. S. Steel touched 113 and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe 125. Foreign exchanges opened strong, demand sterling touching another new high at 4.50¾.

Curb Market Enjoys Boom

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Demonstration of the active public participation was again evidenced in today's short session on the curb exchange. Materialvances took place in many sections and new high records were established in Nickel Plate issues while others displayed pronounced strength around newly established high quotations.

United Bakeries yielded 28 points from Friday's high figure, selling to 152 while Ward Baking made a new high, selling at 126¾. Coal shares also were strong.

There was urgent buying in the petroleum division quotations rising to the highest levels in many months.

WORRIED UNTIL SHE KILLED THE FAMILY. Mrs. Ote Morgan, of Salina, Kan.; her husband and son, Loren. She is believed to have shot her husband as he slept, after chloroforming the son, and finally shooting herself. An unfinished letter lying at her side intimated that loss of health, broke nerves and no future led her to the act.

Community Chest Drive Passes $40,000 Mark

Total amount subscribed to the Community Chest this morning was $40,193.26 according to reports given out at the chest headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce. "Each additional thousand gives us just that much encouragement that we will reach our goal" one of the executive committee members stated this morning. "We have not received the cards from many of the largest industries yet and when they come in the total will be swelled appreciably."

The amount yet to be raised, $24,806.74 does not look like a staggering amount to the workers who are endeavoring to get the "clean-up" work done this week.

Members of the chest committee are anxious that the public understand that the money raised by membership fees collected during the Red Cross membership Roll Call which opens Tuesday, will be deducted from the Red Cross budget in the Community Chest, so that the membership campaign in no way duplicates the chest campaign.

The following letter from J. F. Taylor, chairman of the Community Chest campaign has been addresse dto the workers:

Community Chest Headquarters,
To Captains and Team Workers:—

We are very anxious to ascertain the result arising out of our effort during this period of solicitation for funds with which to support the Community Chest, and I am therefore making the request that each captain confer with his team workers and have both the pledge as well as the prospect cards brought to the office in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, 820 Sixth street.

Wherever a worker has a prospect which may be out of the city at this time, he or she should retain the same for attention and later report.

The Chamber of Commerce will provide quarters for our organization throughout the year and Mr. Frick has consented to again receive and disperse the funds, with Miss Lela Davis in charge of the accounts.

Very truly,
J. F. TAYLOR, Chairman.
The Community Chest Campaign.

NEW BOSTON

That New Boston is not going to lose any time in acting on needed improvement of part of Gallia street within its corporate limits was shown last night when village Council at a call meeting instructed the village engineer to bring in plans, profiles and estimates on the widening and elevating of Gallia street from a point about a half block east of Lakeview avenue to the eastern corporation line at the city waterworks filtration plant. This section of Gallia street crosses big Millbrook lake and runs through Lakeside addition. The plan of Council is to elevate Gallia pike across the lake as the street at this point is much lower than the remaineder of the street. Carrying out of the improvement would mean a new bridge across the lake.

Mayor V. Bierley's report of fines, fees and licenses collected for October and amounting to $998.80 was received. A petition was received from property owners on Buch street asking for thte paving of that street. The engineer was instructed to bring in specifications and estimates for tae paving. As only half of this street is in New Boston and half in Portsmouth the Portsmouth Council and engineer will have to do the same work as New Boston as both will share half the cost of the improvement.

Clerk Russell Middaugh was authorized to issue notes in the sum of $28,500 to pay contractor S. Monroe and Son Company their final estimate on the paving of eight alleys. This is the final payment excepting the usual two per cent held for two years. An ordinance was passed authorizing the cleark to issue notes in the sum of $23,200 to pay the property owners' share of the original cost of the paving of Stanton avenue back in 1919. The legislation has been held up for several years pending the fixing of the assessment on this street.

Council ordered the village engineer to cooperate with Portsmouth engineer in the work of planning for a big sewer that will run from North Moreland addition to the Ohio river. The engineer was also instructed to plan for the placing of fire hydrants on Stewart, Finney and Manning streets in Peebles addition.

Council extended heartiest congratulations to Solicitor Harry Ball in his successful campaign in Tuesday's election. Herbert Ickey, new councilman, taking the place of Joe Allen, was presnt for his first meeting last night. Mr. Rickey was village treasurer several years ago. He now represents the citizens of the East end of the village in council.

EARLY ON THE GROUND

THE election was held on Tuesday.

On Thursday, one Cyrus K. Curtis, of Philadelphia, called upon President Coolidge to consult him about newspaper postage. The telegraph is careful to tell us that Cautious Cal had not made up his mind on the matter when his august visitor departed.

Cyrus is the poor publisher of several magazines and a newspaper or two. He pays more postage than any other publisher in the United States. To guard himself from a breakdown under this monstrous load, when the bleak winds of December blow, he will board his two million dollar yacht and sail for the southern seas, there to bask in balmy breezes through the winter.

Newspapers and periodicals are paying less for postage, millions less, than it costs the government to carry them. Notwithstanding this favor, all the periodicals and quite all the metropolitan dailies are clamoring for still more gratuity. They want postage rates reduced, instead of either being left unchanged, or raised, which latter they ought to be, in common justice.

As a matter of fact, were the rates put upon all second class matter to what they ought to be the government could pay postal employees wages that would be at least in decent comparison with the wages in private occupations.

REMARKABLE FINE AND SUGGESTION

TWO most interesting events, regarding automobiles came out of Cincinnati Thursday.

One was the fining of a driver to the grand total of $418 for speeding at 46 miles an hour in the business district, running by a stop signal and operating with entout and without tail light. Incidentally, the companion of the driver also got a fine of $50 and a sentence of five days in jail for being drunk.

That will likely hold both of them for a spell.

The other was a proposal by Judge Robert S. Marx that the system of indemnity be applied to automobile accidents. In brief his plan is that every person operating an automobile pay a license fee of $10 per annum, to create a fund for paying benefits to persons injured by automobiles, or compensations to their widows and heirs.

The suggestion is a most plausible one. It commends itself especially because of the great difficulty in fixing blame in accidents and the fact that so many drivers are unable to pay damages where their liability is clearly fixed.

Against this it can be strongly argued that such a system would tax all for the mishap or the dereliction of a few, and while that is true, it may be set up, on the other hand, that everyone operating an automobile contributes in a degree to the general hazard of traffic, not by any means, always blamefully but because of the confusion created.

WARNING TO AUTO OWNERS

THE United States public health service sends out a timely warning to owners of automobiles against the increased danger in cold weather of death from carbon monoxide poisoning. It refers to a recent news item telling of the death of a prominent Baltimore man found in his garage with the engine of his automobile still running. With the advent of cold weather such accidents will probably increase in frequency.

Tests have been made by the public health service showing that a small 23-horse-power engine in "warming up" will give off enough poisonous gas to contaminate the air of a small closed garage 10x20 feet to the danger point in about three minutes. Carbon monoxide is colorless, tasteless and almost odorless. Its effect is paralysis of the respiratory apparatus, and its attack is so insidious that even though the victim may become aware of his danger he is often unable to escape because of loss of motive power.

The bulletin therefore warns every person who runs an engine in a small garage to see to it that the room is properly ventilated. Windows and doors should be opened if the motor is permitted to run for even a few minutes.

SHUCKS!! HOW MUCH LONGER?

Doc Koko's KOLUM

Song of a City Cliff-Dweller

Lady of the green silk bloomers,
Living just across the court,
Would your landlord's other roomers
Were your nunffected sort!

When the shades of night are gently
Slipping down upon the world,
You disrobing accidently
Leave your bedroom shades all furled.

Through the fluttering clothes-lined vista,
Gaze I at the charming view;
Ah so charmed to see O sister
So much "that is essential for."

Lady of the verdant knickers
Just across the court from me,
Landlords would have fewer kickers
Were there more like you to see.
—Dartmouth Jack o' Lantern.

Cops Arrested M. T. Herrick For Driving Over Line

CANTON, O., November 8.—(By the United Press)—Two traffic cops received the shock of their lives today when they learned at police headquarters that the man they arrested yesterday for driving across a "Stop" traffic signal, was Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France.

The two policemen, on motorcycles, were clinging to the sides of Herrick's car shouting "stop" a few seconds after his car had passed over the forbidden line.

Herrick jumped to the street and asked quickly what the fine would be. The officers told him $5 and he paid cash and was released immediately.

This morning when the traffic cops recorded the name at headquarters—they were told that they had arrested and fined the American ambassador to France.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Souvenir hunters in New Yok cost the big hotels a huge fortune yearly. No method has been devised to thwart the visitors with what the house detectives call "sticky fingers." The polite form of petty thievery continues to grow.

The old Knickerbocker had the nearest to solution of all, but it was not infallible. The insult to the guest sometimes cost them more in loss of patronage. Floor maids were taught to take in a room at a glance and be capable of missing any article.

When a guest removed a leather writing pad, bronze inkwell or bit of bric-a-brac he found the missing article charged on his bill between the time he left his room and the time he reached the cashier. Many were the surprises. A statistician would probably find that the hooked towels in hotels in a month if stretched end to end would reach from New York to Chicago.

For a time towels and silverware were labeled "This article was stolen from the Hotel Blank." But hotels using this device found they were offending guests who were not souvenir collectors. So they had to abandon this idea.

One hotel has this printed placard in each room: "If there happens to be any article in this room the guests wishes as a souvenir, the management will be pleased to offer it at absolute cost. This applies also to silver and chinaware."

The souvenir hunter is, of course, immune from arrest as a hotel would hesitate to prosecute for such a slight offense. Hotel men say they could reduce their prices at least 10 per cent if they could eliminate the souvenir collector.

Rube Goldberg gave a chandelier christening the other evening. The chandelier represents a jazz band with about 10 of the cartoonist's cartoon characters playing different instruments. It is an amazing tribute to the sculpting art. At a glance it has charm, beauty and dignity, but when you begin to examine it you have the urge to roll on the thick napped carpet of Rube's study in laughter. The bull fiddle player is astride the fiddle sawing away feverishly. The piccolo player's cheeks are ballooned ridiculously and you notice a big flask in his hip pocket. Other figures are just as ludicrous.

Goldberg's home, by the way, on West 75th street, is pointed out by rubber neck wagon megaphonists as the "The House That Laughs Built." It is in the shadow of Charles M. Schwab's stately mansion on the Drive. It is one of the fine old brown stone fronts that the cartoonist has converted into a modern private dwelling. There are four floors of huge high ceiled rooms—rooms long since denied most Manhattan cliff dwelers. Goldberg came to New York about 15 years ago from San Francisco and suffered the usual withering indifference of Park Row until he finally caught on. I have known him most of these years and I know of no one so absolutely unspoiled by success.

They tell of a rather foppish speaker who was suddenly called upon to speak at a banquet. He got started gracefully but finally came to a dead stop and after floundering around awhile someone yelled: "Why don't you try lisping in numbers?"

Public speaking, I believe, is the most difficult of all arts. To those who are not naturally gifted, the terror of facing an audience of the friendliest sort is beyond belief.

Johnson Says People Have Spoken--So There
